

Exon May Ask Retroactive Income Tax To Head Off Deficit

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

With state government on the verge of running out of money next October, the Exon administration Monday took its first step in pointing legislative eyes toward the apparent inevitability of a retroactive income tax hike.

At the direction of Gov. J. James Exon, State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters briefed members of the Legislature's Appropriations and Revenue Committees on the state's funding plight.

It seems to forecast the need for a tax increase, "a good share of it retroactive," Peters told the senators.

Later, in an interview, Exon said "the figures tend to speak for themselves."

Exon said he prefers to wait until his budget address to the Legislature before suggesting any definite course of action.

But it appeared possible that he may suggest the need for a personal income tax increase from 10% back to the 1973 level of 13%, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Exon would not discuss those figures Monday. "I have not made a final determination," he noted.

"We would not be in this critical situation today if the State Board of Equalization had listened to and accepted the recommendations of the governor and the tax commissioner," Exon said.

The board has reduced the income tax rate two years in a row over the objections of the governor. It cut the 13% rate to 11% for 1974, and to 10% for 1975.

"Now," Exon said, "the chickens have come home to roost."

Peters presented senators with a general fund balance projection chart which shows a deficit as of Oct. 31 if tax rates remain unchanged and if the 1975-76 budget is close to current expectations.

While legislators need to be "concerned" with the October period, Peters said, the figures become critical by January.

A deficit which ranges between $3 million and $9 million in October would balloon to $32 million or more by January, he said.

"If budgets are in this (anticipated) range and if we don't have a tax increase — a good share of it retroactive — I might not get paid in December or January," Peters said.

And that, he added with a grin, is a development he would view as "real serious."

Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings and his vice chairman, Robert Clark of Sidney, questioned Peters as to whether Exon plans to introduce legislation to hike the tax rate.

Peters said the governor will outline his proposals in his budget address.

That, the governor said in an interview, will come no later than Feb. 20, "if not sooner."

The Legislature can increase tax rates through enactment of a bill. Each percent of income tax rate raises about $11 million a year.

The personal income tax rate is applied to the taxpayer's federal income tax liability.

The corporation income tax rate, which is applied to a corporation's taxable income, is equal to 25% of the personal rate.

Earlier Monday, lawmakers discussed fiscal policy.

Sen. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove suggested that the Legislature "keep a scorecard" of appropriations and revenue so it can clearly see the effect of its daily decisions.

Marvel released a legislative fiscal study which, he said, indicates that the Legislature "starts out with a prospective deficiency" of $43,390,478.

That represents potential funding obligations higher than the estimated 1975-76 revenue of $306 million, he said.

Included is a $12 million budget boost to fund increased state employee salaries and $15 million in state tax funds to replace federal revenue sharing funds used to help finance state aid to schools.

Deficit appropriations for the current (1974-75) fiscal year could reach more than $14 million, Marvel said.

U.S. Urged To Electrify

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study released Monday by the Atlantic council calls for a massive electrification of the American economy to be financed in part with surplus oil revenues from oil-producing nations.

The study, prepared by John E. Gray, an energy consultant to the council, recommends establishment of a federal energy supply authority to plan the nation's future energy development and help arrange for government lending to finance private development, where necessary.

The Atlantic Council is a non-government organization that was established to help strengthen ties among members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries and other industrialized nations. Its members include many Americans prominent in both public and private life, including Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

The study urges much greater attention to establishment of expended energy supplies than is now being given by the Ford administration and the Congress.

The study recommends attracting and guiding surplus funds from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) into the U.S. energy industry.

Conservation and more efficient energy use is essential, but must be combined with actions to increase supply to offset shortages, the report said.

It recommends substitution of coal and nuclear fuel for oil and gas in production of electricity on a massive scale, and also substitution of electricity for oil and gas in end uses, such as industrial use.

The cost of such a conversion could be financed in large part by the savings from reduced consumption of oil and gas, the study said.

Among major priorities is the need to re-establish the profitability of the nation's electric utilities, whose earnings are now "grossly insufficient" to provide the necessary capital to meet needs, the study said.

Although the study offers no estimates of its own of the cost of an accelerated electrification program, it cites private studies that estimate the cost at $337 billion between 1974 and 1985 — up from normal needs of $306 billion — and $895 billion between 1986 and 2000 — up from normal needs of $404 billion.

Ford Attacks Gas Rationing

'Over My Dead Body'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — President Ford declared Monday that gasoline rationing would be imposed "over my dead body" and accused his opponents of urging "a very high risk and reckless gamble" in calling for him to ease off his oil import curbs.

Ford came to this hub of the oil industry in search of support for his energy and economic plans, and he used a Chamber of Commerce conference as a forum to reiterate his opposition to gasoline rationing and to criticize his congressional opponents.

After the speech, in which he used his strongest language to date against rationing, Ford met privately with a group of leading Texas Republicans. They included John B. Connally, former governor and U.S. Treasury secretary who is under indictment on bribery and perjury charges.

Later Ford invited five Southwestern governors — all Democrats — to a private dinner. Several of the governors have sharply criticized his energy and economic proposals and said they were ready to do so again face to face.

Joining Ford in a hotel suite for a prime-rib dinner were Govs. Dolph Briscoe of Texas, Raul Castro of Arizona, Jerry Apodaca of New Mexico, David Boren of Oklahoma and David Pryor of Arkansas.

Such top-ranking administration officials as Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, economic adviser Alan Greenspan, and energy chief Frank Zarb also joined in the dinner.

Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford and Connally spent about 45 minutes discussing energy and the economy in private. Connally said he and Ford also discussed their golf games but did not talk about his indictment, which stemmed from efforts by milk producers to have federal dairy price supports raised.

The overnight stay in Houston and a series of appearances — including a news conference — in Topeka, Kan., on Tuesday, are part of Ford's stepped-up campaign to win public support for his energy and economic proposals.

He told the energy conference that gasoline rationing would lead only to "a jungle of red tape, bureaucratic judgment, inequities and other problems."

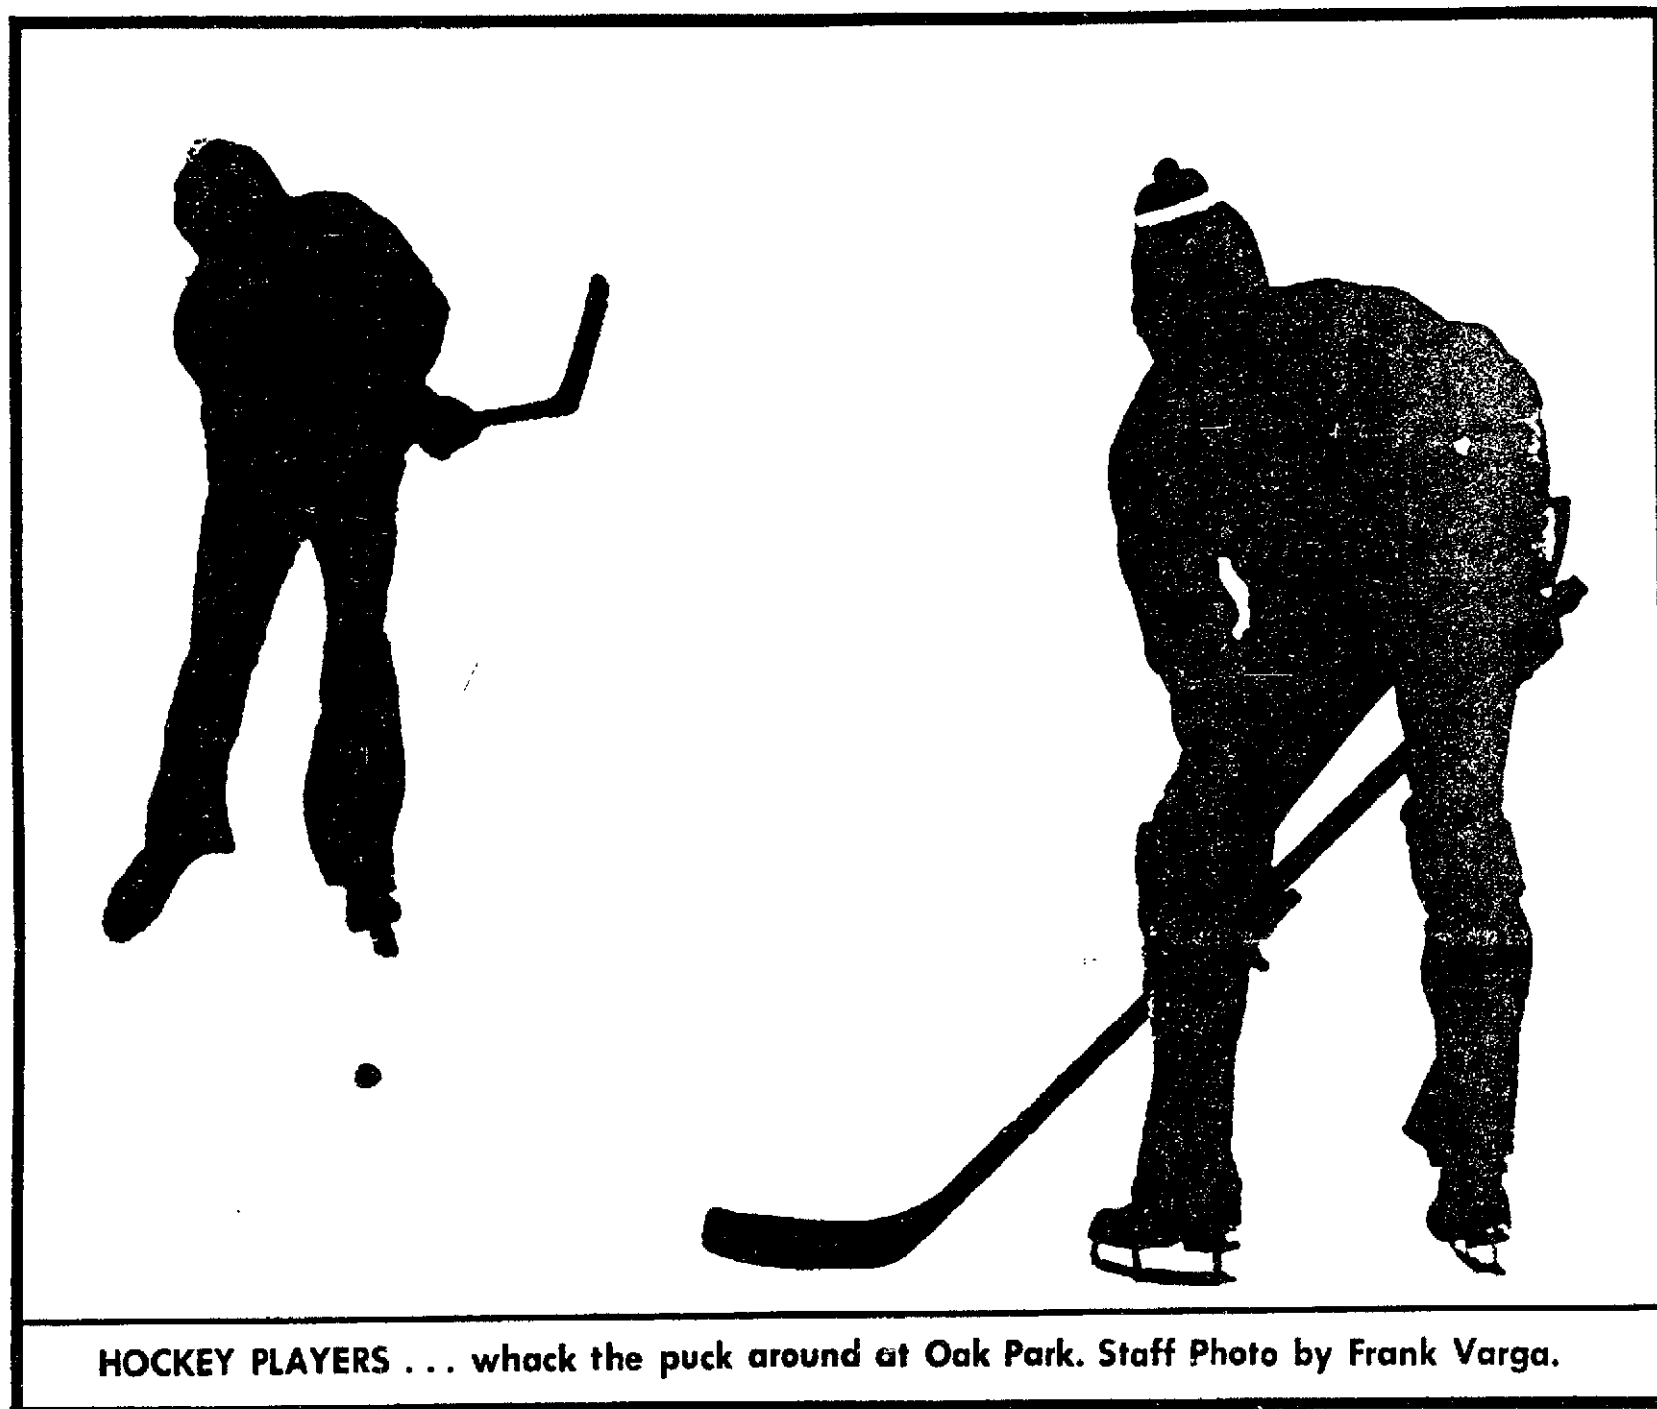

The President accused Congress of being "short-sighted" and of taking "a step backward" by attempting to block his energy recommendations.

He attacked Democratic moves for gasoline rationing and pleaded with his audience of Texans to "not succumb to what some say is an answer to the energy problem .... Gasoline rationing is about the poorest answer I can imagine."

He said gas rationing would last for from five to 10 years and declared "if we get into gasoline rationing ... it will be over my dead body."

Many oilmen were in Ford's audience of about 600, and applauded his call for an end to American dependence on foreign oil.

The President rejected suggestions that he ease off his proposal to cut oil imports by a million barrels a day. He said "this bet-a-million philosophy — that we can continue to import the entire million or a significant part of the million barrels that I propose to cut back — is a very high risk and reckless gamble."

Lincoln General Suggested Detox Center Site

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Councilmen John Robinson and Bob Sikyta said Monday they will see if they can obtain space at Lincoln General Hospital to house a proposed detoxification center.

Robinson and Sikyta, members of the Lincoln General Hospital Board, intend to meet with hospital officials and the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD) staff to negotiate for space.

If a decision is made to house the center at Lincoln General, it will end LCAD's year-long search for a place to put the treatment center.

Negotiations to house the center at the Salvation Army building downtown and at Bethesda Hospital previously fell through.

Nurses' Dormitory
LCAD Director Bob Adams was optimistic that the center could be put in a three-story nurses' dormitory at Lincoln General since the hospital is phasing out its nursing program and will no longer need the dormitory to house students.

The City Council earmarked $94,000 in this year's budget for the detoxification center and program at a time when it appeared the Salvation Army would run the facility.

But Salvation Army officials in Chicago axed the plan when the Lincoln Police Department insisted that people arrested for intoxication be taken to the city jail first.

Officials wanted police to transport intoxicants directly to the center.

Bethesda Hospital officials also decided against the program.

One reason LCAD, a planning and coordinating agency for the community's various drug and alcohol treatment programs, has had trouble finding a site, Adams said, is because his staff doesn't have time to look for a location.

Reconsideration Urged
He urged the council to reconsider its decision not to appropriate $12,500 to hire a director. The director of the program would look for a site and then run the detoxification center, Adams said.

Council members said LCAD should have a center first before hiring a director.

However, the council said it would reconsider the request next week.

In the meantime, LCAD board member the Rev. Jerry Dunn said a detoxification center is Lincoln's "No. 1 need" in the area of alcohol treatment.

A detoxification center would offer "drying out" facilities for alcoholics as well as treatment and counseling.

"We have a lot of hurting people out there," Dunn said. "We need it (the center) and we need it now."

Blizzard Costs City $230,000

The blizzard which dumped nine inches of snow on Lincoln last month did more than stall traffic, strand motorists and close down businesses, offices and schools. It cost more than $230,000 to clean up.

Public Works Director Bob Obering said Monday it cost the city $230,283 to open clogged streets and remove the snow Jan. 10 and 11.

Private contractors' bills to the city totaled $108,768. The city hires around 11 contractors to help the city plow and clear streets during snow storms.

It cost $77,792 to pay city crews those two days and $26,464 in equipment costs, including gasoline, oil and repairs.

The city put $10,579 worth of salt and $6,680 worth of sand on city streets during blizzard mop-up operations.

CableVision To Purchase LT&T Subsidiary

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. President Thomas C. Woods Jr. announced Monday that an agreement has been signed with CableVision Investors, Inc., for the sale of TV Transmission, Inc.

The sale price was not disclosed. TV Transmission, a wholly owned subsidiary of LT&T, provides Community Antenna Television (CATV, or cable) service to 27,000 customers in Auburn, Crete, David City, Fairbury, Humboldt, Lincoln, Nebraska City, Pawnee City, Seward, Superior, Table Rock, Tecumseh and York.

Woods said the sale was prompted by a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) ruling which requires telephone companies to divest themselves of CATV properties located in communities where the companies provide telephone service.

Industry Leader

CableVision Investors, a subsidiary of Daniels Properties Inc. of Denver, Colo., has been a leader in the CATV industry since 1952. It presently serves 60,000 customers in six communities in Texas, California and Wyoming, and has another system under construction at Baton Rouge, La.

John V. Saeman, president of Daniels Properties and CableVision Investors, said Monday in a telephone interview that the "contract calls for final closing on March 15, and we're optimistic" it will be met, although it "could easily slide by 15 to 30 days."

Saeman said "a number of approvals" from the franchising authorities and the FCC are required prior to concluding the transaction, but the company will "go formally before the (Lincoln City) Council and tell them what's going on."

"The immediate plan is fairly well laid out for us," Saeman said. FCC approval has been obtained for "two distant independent television stations," to supplement the offerings of the Nebraska Educational Television Network and the three commercial networks, he said.

K.C. Station

One of the independent stations is principally a sports- and movie-oriented channel in Kansas City, Mo., that will offer southeast

Nebraskans a sports package "not carried by the networks," Saeman cited Omaha professional basketball as an example.

Daniels Properties is also seeking to carry another independent station, it has approval for Denver Channel 2, KWGN, primarily movies and sports, but is considering a Minneapolis station instead, Saeman said.

Locally, the company will provide a public access channel. "We will talk to the City Council about some specific plans," he said. Meanwhile, "there are a number of things that have to be worked out with the FCC" as well, before developing a firm public access policy.

The company, which will be completely independent of LT&T, will also expand services in the Lincoln local origination station, Channel 9, Saeman said.

Children's programming and movies will be continued and expanded, Saeman said, and CableVision will "buy as good a movie package as we can get."

Color TV Plans

Further, the company intends "to introduce color capabilities" to Channel 9, in the studio as well as for such remote telecasting as high school football games, he said.

"The phone company (LT&T) has done an outstanding job in terms of quality," Saeman said, and CableVision's immediate work will be to add signals and upgrade from black-and-white to color.

Saeman noted that "only a limited number of people" have worked directly for TV Transmission. The majority of the employees, specifically those in installation and maintenance, are LT&T employees, and may wish to continue working for the telephone company to retain seniority and benefits.

CableVision "will more or less start anew in terms of our employee base," he said. "We will bring in our own top-level management structure and will hire new employees." Some present cable employees "will remain with the company."

It's "not in our immediate plan," Saeman said, to expand cable television service beyond the 13 communities TV Transmission now serves, but he left it as a possibility.

Thieu Tells Vietnamese More Hard Times Ahead

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu told South Vietnamese beginning the Tet lunar newyear Monday that more bloodshed and hard times are ahead. The political opposition repeated calls for his resignation.

In an address to mark Vietnam's Year of the Cat, Thieu again ruled out a coalition government with the Viet Cong and pledged to fight until Communist forces are defeated.

More than 20 opposition deputies and senators staging a hunger strike in front of the National Assembly building lighted torches and burned photos of the president. They chanted, "Grab Thieu's head and pull him down," "Nguyen Van Thieu must resign," and "Down with the heron seller Nguyen Van Thieu."

Charges that Thieu has been involved in narcotics distribution have been made several times in the past. He has denied them.

A letter from the opposition accused Thieu of taking advantage of Tet by going on national radio "to renew his lies and his promises for political stability, building up democracy, and maintaining territorial integrity."

In his address, Thieu said:

"Two years have elapsed since the signing of the Paris cease-fire agreement. The North Vietnamese Communists have rebuilt in South Vietnam a stronger invasion force.

"They are crazily pushing ahead a general offensive on our territory. We must understand that the Communists will never strictly implement the Paris agreement unless their armed invasion at present is defeated."

He called on the people to increase production and sacrifice so as to give sufficient manpower and materials to soldiers.

If the rear is fully stabilized then the soldiers on the front line do not worry and will fight to destroy the enemy," Thieu said.

He said those in the rear cannot allow Communists "to integrate among our nationalist ranks to poison and excite the people and to campaign for political solutions that would lead to a surrender to the Communists."

Thieu labels much of his political opposition as Communists or their henchmen. The 18 newsmen arrested last week were accused of being Communist agents. The five newspapers closed were among nine that had tried to print charges of corruption and malfeasance against Thieu.

Kissinger, Israelis Review Positions

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, arriving in Israel to launch his latest round of Middle East diplomacy, said Monday the United States is ready to take other approaches to a settlement than his step-by-step plan.

"We are prepared to explore other means and other forums if necessary," he said in an obvious reference to the Geneva conference, which the Kremlin and some Arab states want resumed.

Kissinger met Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and an Israeli negotiating team for nearly two hours over dinner in what both sides described as a "general review" of positions.

No details of the meeting were made available to newsmen but the presence of the Israeli chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, could indicate the military aspects of an Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert were on the agenda.

A spokesman for Rabin said Monday's talks were aimed at setting up an agenda for future negotiation. "No specifics were discussed," he said.

State Department spokesman Robert Anderson said Kissinger had scheduled a private breakfast meeting with Rabin for Tuesday, followed by another session with the full working groups from both sides.

Kissinger said earlier that the United States was "committed to rapid progress in achieving a second-stage agreement between Israel and Egypt and was prepared to abandon his personal diplomacy if necessary.

But he said Israel and the United States "agree that the step-by-step approach is likely to be the most productive."

He thanked the Israeli government for endorsing his approach, but said the United States does not subscribe to any special way of achieving the "rapid progress" it seeks.

Kissinger's one-week mission to the Middle East is designed to find out if he can arrange another settlement between Israel and Egypt in the Sinai Desert.

One Shaf Quint Dies

Chicago (AP) — One of the Shaf quintuplets born Sunday died Monday night, hospital authorities said.

Ryan Theodore Shaf, the third of five babies born to Cheryl Shaf, had suffered from a lung condition.

The child had a condition known as hyaline membrane disease. It is marked by breathing difficulty due to tiny lungs.

The other two boys and two girls, in incubators, were doing fine, hospital officials reported.

The new parents finished naming the children Monday. In addition to Ryan Theodore, the boys were named Derek Anthony and Adam Adrian. The girls are Vanessa Ashley and Tiffany Alison.

New York Times News Summary

Filibuster Block Seen

Washington — Key Senate Democrats have worked out an arrangement they hope will block a possible filibuster against a bill to stop President Ford from raising import fees on oil. Under the agreement, the Senate would be assured of a chance to work on a bill to revoke the $1-a-barrel import fee imposed by the President and keep him from making any other changes in oil import fees for 90 days. Democrats who oppose the fee want time to work out their own program to reduce the nation's dependence on imported oil.

Brokers Show Profits

New York — The New York Stock Exchange reported that its member brokerage firms recorded a strong profit increase during the final three months of 1974 and finished the year solidly in the black. The surprise improvement was attributed largely to two rate increases granted stockbrokers since September 1975, but the exchange's report conflicted sharply with less than glowing reports from leading brokerage houses.

Benefits Lacking

New Delhi — India's strong support of the Arab nations has failed so far to yield substantive economic benefits, according to Indian and foreign economists. The visit of Saudi Arabia's petroleum minister underlined the fact that immediate and concrete help for India had been ruled out among many oil producers.

Iraq Seeks Support

Beirut, Lebanon — Iraq was reported Monday to be seeking a high-level meeting of Arab countries bordering on the Persian Gulf to gain support against Iranian military aid to Kurdish rebels in northern Iraq.

Flexible Position Taken

Brussels — The nine members of the European Economic Community, or Common Market, agreed Monday on a flexible opening position for the 105-nation trade liberalization talks within the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs which began Tuesday in Geneva.

Talks Resumed

Moscow — The United States and the Soviet Union resumed negotiations here on the possible inclusion in a treaty of underground nuclear tests for peaceful purposes.

Kickbacks Admitted

New York — Nineteen of the 23 foreign and domestic airlines that fly between the U.S. and Europe have agreed to admit to federal prosecutors that they gave illegal kickbacks to travel agents and passengers.

Airport Battle Fought

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Fierce battles with rifles, bazookas, rockets and machine guns were reported Monday night in a rebel attempt to gain control of the airport at the besieged northern provincial capital of Asmara.

Diplomatic sources said Ethiopian troops apparently repulsed the attacks on Johannes airport.

The field is the only supply link to northern Eritrea province, with land routes already severed by Moslem insurgents demanding an independent state.

During the day Ethiopian jet fighters bombed rebel zones north of Asmara and a government unit lured out of the city was ambushed and virtually wiped out, the sources said.

Stennis Begins Inquiry Into Pentagon Contract

Washington (AP)—Chairman John C. Stennis D-Miss. of the Senate Armed Services Committee began an inquiry Monday into a Pentagon contract with a private corporation to train Saudi Arabian national guardsmen protecting oil fields.

Stennis said he asked Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger for an explanation after disclosure by The Associated Press on Sunday of a $77 million Defense Department contract with Vinnell Corp. of Los Angeles.

Vinnell is recruiting former U.S. special forces soldiers and other war veterans for a 1,000-man force to send to Saudi Arabia.

Stennis declined further comment before learning the facts, but said he understood that the contract is based on legal authorizations contained in the Foreign Military Sales Act, a part of the U.S. foreign military assistance program.

In the House Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi D-Mich., chairman of the House Armed Services subcommittee on military personnel, said his group also will go into it.

At the State Department, a spokesman said that the Defense Department frequently contracts with civilian companies to carry out aspects of its responsibilities under similar circumstances.

Millions Owed To Consumers

By The Associated Press

Department stores, banks and other businesses owe millions of dollars to American consumers who have failed to collect money that is due them in charge account and credit card refunds.

Until now, it was the customer's responsibility to make sure he got his money and many people forgot or didn't bother or didn't know how to collect. Recent government actions may put the shoe on the other foot, requiring businesses to take affirmative steps to insure refunds are received.

No one is sure just how much money is involved.

Allen Reskin of the Federal Trade Commission says the sum is "staggering . . . untold millions." Stephen Mindell of the New York State attorney general's office says the total could be "hundreds of thousands, even millions, of dollars. It's like a pot of gold . . . People are letting it go by default."

Where does all the money come from?

From customers who overpay their charge bills or who buy something, pay for it, return it and take a credit on their account.

In both cases, the bank or department store involved lists the credit on the monthly statement at the end of the billing period in which the credit was registered.

If the customer does not spend the credit in a specified period of time — usually about six months — the account is declared inactive and the balance is listed as zero. The money is transferred into an account belonging to the business.

If the customer asks for the credit, he will be given the money. But if he forgets about it, he won't get a penny. If he reactivates his account by making a purchase at a later date, he probably will be billed in the usual way for the full amount. No credit.

Isn't it illegal for someone else to keep my money?

Maybe. The trouble is, there apparently is no law specifically forbidding such a practice. The FTC filed a complaint last September against five department stores doing business under nine different banners, alleging that they pocketed $2.8 million of customers' money. Reskin says the complaint was filed under Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act designed to prevent unfair business practices. Most states have similar laws, but officials say there have been no court rulings testing the issue.

Here Are Some Steps You Can Take

By The Associated Press

Authorities say millions of Americans are losing money by not collecting charge account or credit card refunds. Here are some steps you can take to make sure you do not lose money.

—If you think you may have a refund coming, check your records. There may be an old credit you had forgotten about. If you're not sure whether money is owed you, contact the credit office of the store or bank involved. If you think a refund is due and you cannot get satisfaction from the store, Stephen Mindell of the New York State attorney general's office advises that you contact your state attorney general.

—Keep all bills in one place such as a desk drawer for easy reference.

—Set aside a specific time once or twice a month for paying bills. Don't forget to note the due date on each one. Some credit card companies allow you 25 days to pay without interest or penalty, others have a 30-day limit.

—When you have paid a bill, make a notation to that effect on the stub, adding the date and check number. This will insure that you and your spouse don't each pay the same bill separately. If you have paid only part of the bill, write down the amount you have sent in.

—Keep track of your money. If you have a refund coming, make a note of it and keep the note with your other financial records. If you don't plan to spend money at the store involved for some time, apply for the refund in cash.

Men Ready For Joint Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — American astronauts and Russian cosmonauts said Monday they are ready for July's joint space mission and see no safety hazards despite earlier problems with the Soviet Soyuz craft.

"All the problems of Soyuz 11 have easily been taken care of. The success of six flights since then, including Soyuz 17 which landed yesterday, answers the questions you have asked," cosmonaut Valery Kubasov told a news conference.

"Our spacecraft is ready for the flight."

Three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts died in 1971 when their spacecraft suddenly depressurized during re-entry.

American specialists have raised a question about an apparent error in the orbital path of Soyuz 16, which was launched in December to practice maneuvers and techniques for the joint American-Russian mission.

It required three, instead of one, spacecraft maneuvers to achieve the Apollo practice rendezvous orbit, but Soviet officials said this was planned all along. Some Americans are skeptical and are examining the orbital figures carefully with Russian trajectory experts.

Astronaut Thomas Stafford, who will command the U.S. crew, said he had talked with the Soyuz 16 cosmonauts and they had assured him there were no problems.

"We are safe and ready to go as far as we're concerned," Stafford said.

Other members of the American crew, Donald Slayton and Vance Brand, supported him, as did Alexei Leonov, commander of the two-man Soyuz team for the joint flight.

19,000 On Strike

By The Associated Press

One strike. One new contract. More layoffs.

That was the labor news that highlighted the economic picture on Monday as the Commerce Department reported that retail sales improved in January and Treasury Secretary William Simon warned that interest rates might go up again.

The strike involved some 19,000 production workers who walked off the job at McDonnell Douglas plants in Missouri, Florida and California at midnight Sunday in a wage dispute. Company officials said jet fighter production could be halted if the strike is a long one.

The settlement involved West Coast dockworkers. Officials of the Pacific Maritime Association and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union said the new contract covering some 12,000 workers at Pacific ports guarantees no layoffs through the life of the pact, which expires in July 1977. Union spokesmen predicted overwhelming ratification of the agreement, which they said includes a minimum 3 1/2 per cent raise in pay over the life of the contract.

FTC Judge Says A&P Deceives Customer

Washington (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled Monday that A&P, the second largest U.S. supermarket chain, has deceived customers by advertising for sale items which are either unavailable or marked at higher prices.

In acting on a 1973 complaint, FTC Administrative Law Judge Daniel H. Hanscom said A&P's failure to provide what was advertised, "unless due to factors beyond A&P's control, is unfair, misleading and deceptive to members of the purchasing public, and is unfair to competitors."

He said unavailability and overpricing problems uncovered at some of A&P's 3,500 stores were greater than what would have been due to human error or other factors beyond the firm's control.

Hanscom said that in major cities shoppers ran a 13% chance of not finding what they came to the store to buy, or ended up paying more than they planned.

A&P, which has gross sales amounting to $6.7 billion a year, once was the nation's largest supermarket chain, but in recent years has fallen behind Safeway.

In a statement, A&P said, "If we find, as the FTC did, that we have a problem in the roots of our internal procedures and, possibly in the characteristics of A&P's operations, we will immediately initiate steps to correct such a deficiency."

In connection with the decision, the FTC released a survey it made in April, May and June 1973, just after it issued the complaint, of leading chain stores in 20 metropolitan areas. FTC agents went to four major stores of different chains in each area to check newspaper ads against what was actually available.

The FTC said there was a 13% incidence of unavailability or overpricing at A&P.

The FTC encourages, but does not require, stores to offer "rain checks" when an advertised item is not available. The offering of such rain checks, however, is not viewed as a defense for not having the items on hand.

Social Security System Sound, Report Says

Washington (UPI) — The Social Security system is financially sound and healthy despite a "manageable" long range need for more income, five former health, education and welfare secretaries and three former Social Security commissioners reported Monday.

They said workers had no grounds to fear that their payroll contributions will not be honored when they retire. Nor, they said, is there cause for alarm that the monthly benefits currently provided to more than 30 million retired disabled and survivors will be reduced or withheld.

"Attacks on the system designed to create doubt of its soundness and durability are a disservice to the nation," the report said.

The case reserve trust fund which Congress provided for periods of economic stress like the present it added, will provide enough money to continue payments through the rest of the century, and it is "a cruelty" for critics to claim otherwise.

"We sense that as a result of recession and budget cuts people are worried they are going to lose their Social Security, or it's not going to be paid when they need it," said former HEW Secretary Wilbur Cohen, one of the eight authors and a leading organizer of the Medicaid program.

"We are here to say that on the basis of 40 years of experience, we see no reason for individuals to be concerned," he told newsmen.

The report did concede that inflation is causing benefit payments to outrun the additional income coming from higher wages. As a result, it said, income to support the cash benefit program will have to be increased over the next 25 years by about 10-15%.

"In any event, it added, "the size of the problem over the next 25 years is easily manageable and certainly does not constitute a financial crisis."

The former HEW secretaries who signed the report were Elliot Richardson, Robert Finch, John Gardner, Arthur Flemming and Cohen. The former commissioners were Charles Schottland, William Mitchell and Robert Ball.

While defending the financial integrity of the Social Security Administration, the eight declined to identify the critics of Social Security.

Cohen and Ball said the attacks were reflected in news reports which gave the impression that the system was on the verge of bankruptcy. As a result, they said, local Social Security offices were being swamped with questions from worried beneficiaries.

A Call For Research

The Star writer who wrote "For Safety's Sake" (regarding self-service gas stations in Lincoln) apparently did not do enough research.

The point this writer tries to make is that if it's self-service, it's bound to be cheaper. Not so. I travel an area of Nebraska including Omaha, and know of at least two stations in Lincoln selling gas at a lower price than I've seen anywhere else. The Star ran an oil company ad last week that also wanted to mislead readers into thinking self-service would provide lower prices on gas.

This writer said that Councilman Richard Baker "shouldn't forget that adaptability to market conditions is not only one of the hazards, but one of the cornerstones of the free enterprise system." The writer apparently does not know that Mr. Baker recently changed the scope and location of his own business to compete in the free enterprise system.

Next time, how about a little research?

College Of Dentistry

Three cheers for the University of Nebraska College of Dentistry and Dr. Paul Rich who put gold inlays in my teeth! The work was careful and efficient under the watchful eyes of the instructors.

The standards of the College of Dentistry may be higher than work done by private dentists in spite of the fact there are no fancy plants, shag rugs and other gimmicks in the front office of the clinic.

There is a great demand for good dentists and the school is busy manufacturing them. In fact, the first private dentist I consulted had a waiting line a mile long and couldn't expand his practice. He referred me to another successful Lincoln dentist who gave me an examination but dropped interest when I refused to join a $40 program to watch movies on "Mr. Tooth Decay" and hear lectures about flossing.

"I was ripped off for that in New York," I said, "so why do I have to go through it again?"

Since that time I haven't even rated the doctor's mailing list and I never heard from him again.

The Governor Proposes . . .

Nebraska state employees are exploited as well as the other employees in the state, and elsewhere, for that matter. Ruinous inflation is tearing at the fabric of the well-being of these workers. Masses of people suffer.

And what does Gov. J. J. Exon propose for state employees in particular? — A less-than-cost-of-living increase, and not massive deserved wage gains.

There is a fundamentally unjust distribution of wealth in this state. And what does J. J. Exon propose? — Basically holding the line on already underpaid state employees.

There are very privileged and comfortable people who deserve to pay much more in taxes than they presently pay. Does J. J. Exon propose progressively reforming the tax structure? No — he sides with the unjust status quo. You don't see Governor Exon coming out for confiscating the wealth of the bankers and other corporate leaders. No, the exploited are supposed to "bite the bullet" until they can earn enough to pay more taxes while the rich continue on their generally corrupt and greedy ways.

State employees are going to have to organize into progressive democratic roots unions to work for social and economic justice. J. J. Exon is another boss who deserves to be resisted.

When is the Nebraska Democratic Party going to join in that effort? When is the Nebraska Democratic Party going to affirm democracy for all?

The Issue Of Recission

In The Star article concerning the defeat of the ERA, Feb. 3, it was indicated that all constitutional authorities agree a state cannot rescind its ratification. Such information could not have been obtained from the authorities themselves.

I have on hand photostatic copies of letters from three of the nation's leading constitutional authorities. They all say the very opposite. They are Charles Black, Luce Professor of Jurisprudence at Yale Law School, Professor Philip Kurland of the University of Chicago Law School and editor of the prestigious "Supreme Court Review," and former Senator Sam Ervin, one of the nation's most brilliant constitutional scholars. Prof. Black's letter especially is interesting for he says that the anti-recission people "want to make a sort of one-way lobster trap out of a serious constitutional process, or a silly game of tag." He further mentions that the 14th Amendment "precedent" is special, very narrow and in any case, not binding.

I also have on hand a lengthy study on recission prepared by the Library of Congress Congressional Research Service, saying that the matter remains an open question. The study further points out that when the 15th Amendment was under consideration, a bill was introduced which would have declared any attempt at recission null and void, but the bill died in Congress after an unfavorable report by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The issues before the nation are important enough as to warrant serious and sober analysis, and the recent manipulation of the legislative process in the matter of LR 4 so as to bypass public hearings in no way will restore the confidence of citizens in governmental process. Neither will an over-simplification of the issue of recission.

Seeking Alternatives

NEW YORK — Ron Nessen was not really in the wrong but he was more than a little one-sided the other day when he attacked the Democratic Congress for doing nothing. That is a phrase the Democrats will no doubt hear often, since Nessen's remarks obviously reflect the basic White House political strategy.

President Ford's news secretary spoke just after Congress had completed swift action to freeze the price of federal food stamps. That prevented Ford from raising the price by executive action, "saving" the government $645 million from the higher prices and far more from the two to three million people who would be priced out of the program. On the same day, the House had voted to stop Ford from taking executive action to impose a tax on imported oil.

So it is true that Ford moved in both cases to "do something" — save money by increasing the cost of food to the poor, and save energy by increasing the cost of oil to everybody. It is also true that Congress, by voting to stop these White House actions — the Senate is expected to follow the House on the oil tax — was literally opting to "do nothing."

In fact, however, Congress had little choice but to act as it did, unless it was to let Ford have his way. If the food stamp price increase had been put into effect by March 1, as Ford proposed, the states would have had to start making complicated administrative changes now; so the increase had to be stopped now, if at all. Since Ford already had proclaimed the oil tax, and since its economic bite would have begun to be felt by March 1, Congress again had to take quick negative action, or let Ford's plan go unchallenged.

Ford's food stamp proposal, moreover, was manifestly ill-conceived in a time of recession, both raising the cost of food for the poor and taking money out of the economy; and it is far from clear that his energy conservation plan is either the best available for that purpose or that it will not prove a strong drag on economic recovery. A responsible Congress could hardly let either program be imposed on the nation by executive fiat.

But the Democrats will find it difficult to persuade the public that Ford should not force their hands by arbitrary executive action, that he should work with them to develop programs acceptable to all — based, perhaps, upon plans originating in the executive branch. That is complicated, sounds self-serving, and produces no effective slogan to match that of a "do-nothing Congress."

Politically, therefore, the Democrats' best strategy — and their hardest task — is to take action on effective alternatives to Ford's proposals. On food stamps, for one good example, far more could and should be done than merely freezing prices in their present inequitable pattern, which heavily favors the better-off among the poor as against the poorest persons, and which penalizes large families.

Most poor families of four or more are already buying food stamps at close to the 30% of their incomes that Ford wanted to make mandatory for all, while individuals seldom have to pay more than 20%.

The food stamp program, moreover, is one that really does give more help to the welfare poor than to the working poor, at least in many states.

Designed originally as much to sell surplus foods as to relieve the poor, the food stamp program has been developed over the years in bits and pieces, many of them ill-fitting. But 8% of the American people now are using them, and the program needs a thorough overhaul, which Ford would have done better to propose than he did by his arbitrary price increase. That Congress has stopped the latter now gives it the opportunity to go ahead with the former — and poses the danger that members may now think they have done all that's necessary.

In energy conservation, a Democratic study committee is reported to be at work on a plan to couple a rollback of Ford's oil tax with a new gasoline tax that would rise as unemployment falls, with part of the revenues earmarked for improving rail service and financing energy research. Such a program would have the virtue of stretching out energy conservation rather than trying to achieve the necessary reduction in oil imports all in one year, which could have disastrous effects on economic recovery.

Parks May Close

WASHINGTON — The Park Service may be compelled to close some national parks to vacationing Americans this summer because of budget restrictions.

Park Service documents, intended for official eyes only, warn that unless the White House loosens up on money, "the present trend inevitably will lead to the closing of some park areas" in the summer.

The parks are short 1,200 rangers and other workers. While park use has gone up 100% in the last 10 years, the staff has been held to a 21% increase.

In the last three years alone, according to the documents, the number of visitors to national parks has increased more than 50 million. At the same time, 28 parks have been added to the national outdoor recreational system. The work force, however, simply hasn't kept up with the expansion.

The suppressed documents appear to contradict President Ford's promise of support for America's outdoor recreational areas.

On top of everything else, the Central Intelligence Agency is now in trouble with black congressmen for its failure to hire minority spies.

Confidential figures wrung from the CIA's personnel files by Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., the House black caucus chairman, indicate racial discrimination by the CIA.

Already, Rangel's office has contacted the Civil Service Commission to question its approval of the CIA's 1975 minority hiring plans. The CIA, for years, has been active in Africa and Latin America. Less than 3% of the CIA employees are minority workers who have reached spy status or other high levels. In fact, only 5.7% of the entire CIA work force are black, Indian, Spanish-speaking or Asian-American. Of this small number, three-fourths have such low-paying jobs as messengers, file clerks and mimeograph operators.

Our own forays into the fortress-like spy factory in McLean, Va., bear out the figures. The pipe-smoking, vested officials all seem to be white. The only blacks we saw were errand boys.

In contrast, the FBI and Secret Service are rapidly building up their minority forces. The FBI now has more than 10% minority employees, including some 200 of its 8,500 agents. The Secret Service, which requires highly specialized skills, has 41 minority agents out of 1,200. Both agencies are actively recruiting blacks and other minorities.

After three attempted crashes at the White House, the Secret Service is worried that someone might use stolen weapons in an assault. The helicopter used in one of the attempts, for example, was stolen from nearby Fort Meade, Md. Yet at Andrews Air Force Base, even closer to the White House than Fort Meade, a secret Air Force inspection has turned up serious breaches of security on ammunition storage areas.

Intelligence reports predict that the communists will continue to make gains in South Vietnam. This is acknowledged, according to the reports, by Saigon officials who are beginning to lose hope.

The Postal Service now expects to lose twice as much money this year than the original estimate. The postal deficit is expected to surpass $800 million. Yet the Postal Service, a $15 billion-a-year business, was put on a business basis to make it more efficient and eliminate deficits. In order to break even, some postal authorities privately are calling for a sharp increase in postage rates.

(c) 1975, by U. P. Synd.

not probably, result in the achievement of a foreign policy goal now rejected by most Americans.

The funneling of sufficiently large amounts of money to Southeast Asia for the next three years, even in return for a pledge by the President (who has one year left in his term and no guarantee for four more years) that he won't ask for any more is nothing more than throwing good money after bad.

Many people who have supported the policies of this and previous administrations on Vietnam are admitting that American dollars cannot purchase military success over the long run for President Thieu and Lon Nol. Once the loyal opposition's leading exponent of the display of American power in Indochina, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, publicly questions the wisdom of continued aid. Close to home, Rep. Charles Thone of this district opposes the $300 million emergency request and believes continued American efforts in Southeast Asia are futile.

Only last Friday, Gen. Fred Weyand, Army chief of staff, testified to the Senate that U.S. support for South Vietnam probably would be required for another five to ten years.

If Ford wants to keep Thieu going, why doesn't he plug for sufficiently large sums of money for the next five or ten years or however long he and Kissinger and the Pentagon think it will take to perpetuate Thieu in office? Why throw a bunch of money at Saigon for the next three years only?

We're all for a dialogue between Ford and the Congress but we think a majority of Americans will agree that wasting another fortune on Indochina — whether over ten years or three — should not be the outcome.

Of Future Importance

We agree with Lincoln architect Robert Hanna that the old Federal Building block across from the Hilton Hotel is second only to the Centrum block in importance to the future of downtown Lincoln. What happens to that block will be instrumental in shaping attitudes and plans for downtown revitalization projects for years to come.

But it is also important to remember that dreams about developing the federal building block must be tempered by the realization that the block is in private hands. And although the present owners and possible future owners may be good citizens, they may also and understandably want to put the property to the use that will give them the best return on their investment. Hopefully, they can find a use that will benefit the entire community and that will contribute significantly to downtown Lincoln's vitality.

Hopefully private owners, or possibly public owners or a combination of them both, can plan a land use which is both feasible and worthy of a city of this quality.

What Omaha did with its Orpheum Theatre — a chance Lincoln had and missed in the recent past — may serve as a general inspiration to developers in this city.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Vietnam, Moral Issue

WASHINGTON — A communist rocket, fired with the intent of killing civilians in the capital of Cambodia, exploded in a school and slaughtered a score of children.

Shocking pictures of the bodies of the children appeared on nightly television news and on front pages, bringing all the horror of war once again into the American living room.

Had the rocket been supplied by U.S. aid, or fired by recipients of U.S. aid, the anguished uproar would have been heard in the halls of Congress and in every cranny of the land to "stop the killing" and deny the murdering attackers one more round of ammunition.

But it was a communist rocket, financed in Peking or Moscow and launched by the Khmer Rouge, who are trying to overthrow a non-communist government. Therefore, after a humanitarian wince of pain, the reaction here is muted. We shudder and turn away.

That is because we are bored with Southeast Asia's endless warfare, frustrated by our inability to end it once and for all; a large congressional group now seriously proposes to let it end by cutting off supplies to our allies so that they will lose and be quiet.

They tell us that our allies are at fault for the killing that comes with their continued resistance to overthrow; that our word is our bond is our bondage, and the United States is somehow to blame for the continuance of warfare, since we are unwilling to dictate a surrender; that our allies are more evil than the enemy they are fighting.

That final assertion — that President Thieu is a "corrupt dictator" unworthy of our aid — is made by longtime doves with a vested interest in his downfall, because they predicted his collapse the moment we pulled our troops out of Vietnam. But there he stands, two years later, an obstacle to takeover by North Vietnam and — worse yet — a reproof to those who were so certain he has no indigenous support.

One basic fact stares us in the face: There are no South Vietnamese troops killing anybody in North Vietnam; there are plenty of North Vietnamese troops fighting today in South Vietnam. It is still the South that is defending itself from sustained attack from the North.

Forget about that, says a weary majority: America did its bit. If the South Vietnamese cannot defend themselves by themselves now, we cannot be expected to support them forever. That goes for the Cambodians as well.

Foolishly, responsible officials in the United States repeat the light-at-the-end-of-the-tunnel argument; just another year's aid, just a billion or so more, and we'll win. That's nonsense.

Much more is at stake here than the fate of one regime, or the expenditure of several hundred millions, or the justification of past positions. Either America will remain a strong force against worldwide totalitarian coercion or she will turn inward and head downward.

2-Hour DWI Test Delay Draws Fire

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Law enforcement officers Monday objected to proposed legislation which would give persons charged with driving while intoxicated the right to wait two hours before taking a blood, breath or urine test.

The bill, LB250, sponsored by Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln, provides such a time period in order to allow the apparent violator time to talk with an attorney and, if he wishes, have the lawyer present during the test.

The Legislature's Judiciary Committee held the measure for later action.

Simpson said his bill has "no connection whatsoever" with the current controversy over Lincoln Police Department procedures. His proposal was drafted prior to the current debate, he said.

'Not Treated Equally'

His concern, he said, was that law enforcement officers were "not treating people equally or fairly," and that some statutory requirements are needed to assure uniform administration of drunk driving laws.

Simpson said he hopes Lincoln's special police investigator, James Bruckner, will "offer some advice" on the proposal after he finishes interviewing Lincoln citizens on local enforcement of the law.

Simpson's bill would guarantee an alleged offender's right to telephone an attorney or a family member "as soon as reasonably practicable" and require police to inform the person of his right to remain silent.

LB250 also guarantees that a person arrested for driving while intoxicated may be released to his attorney or a family member immediately after he is booked without posting any bond.

The two-hour time period caused the most concern among opponents of the bill, which included the Police Officers Assn. of Nebraska, the Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers Assn., and the Nebraska County Attorneys Assn.

The procedures could "inhibit law enforcement officers" from performing their tasks, police officers attorney Ted Kessner of Lincoln said.

Could Make Difference

Omaha City Prosecutor Gary Buchino said two hours could make the difference between an intoxicated man and a sober man.

But if the bill were amended to make certain that the two-hour period is a maximum time span, Buchino said, it would be "less objectionable" than a provision which now appears to allow two hours before a decision is even made on whether to submit to a body fluid test.

Requirements proposed in the bill would make enforcement "well high impossible," according to Joyce Amen, speaking for the Nebraska Women for Highway Safety.

In other action, the committee continued until March 25 a hearing on a proposed bill to decriminalize drunkenness and institute a statewide treatment and rehabilitation program for "alcohol-dependent people."

The measure, LB237, proposed by Sen. Wally Barnett of Lincoln, attracted 2½ hours of supporting testimony before the hearing was concluded for the day.

Handling the problem as a criminal matter "has not worked," Barnett said. "We need to try a different method to get these people back on their feet."

Decriminalization would take effect July 1, 1977 after the rehabilitation program is presumably underway.

Costs would be paid with a combination of personal, private, insurance and tax funds, Barnett said, similar to the funding provisions of the community mental health program.

Educators Support Aid Increase

By The Associated Press
Educators Monday voiced support for a proposal to increase state aid to education, but objected to including spending limitations in the bill.

John Lynch, spokesman for the Nebraska State Education Association, said LB368 would result in needed update of the current state aid to education program.

The education committee heard and held the bill, which would increase state aid to education $15 million annually until state support reached 40% of total cost. The bill was introduced by Sens. Herb Duis of Gothenburg and Gerald Koch of Lincoln.

Lynch said the bill meets the two requirements for state support based on "better equality in taxation for support of schools and more equitable education opportunities for all children in the state."

But Lynch said "it is simply wrong for the state to set a spending limitation for any subdivision of government."

The bill proposes to limit budget increases to 8% for school districts spending $1,100 per pupil the previous year. School districts spending less could increase budgets up to 12%.

Lynch said a firm 8% limit on spending increases "simply would not be applicable in today's economic times" because it could not take inflation into consideration.

Current spending limitations are based on the consumer price index.

M.L. Christianson, director of state aid for the Department of Education, said the state Board of Education supports increasing state aid but would rather see funding based 60% on the number of students and 40% on local needs rather than the 50-50 split proposed in the bill.

Roger Miller, superintendent of the Lexington Public Schools, objected to changing the proposed distribution formula. He said under a 60-40 split "the rich get richer and the poor get poorer."

Current state aid to education is $55 million.

State Senators Defeat Approval Of Record

By United Press International
Nebraska lawmakers Monday soundly defeated an attempt by Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha to have the Legislature formally approve the legislative record compiled in connection with the 48th District race.

In that contest, former Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff was a 68-vote loser to Sen. William Nichol, also of Scottsbluff.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, chairman of a special seven-member committee directed to investigate the election after Carpenter filed a challenge to the official outcome, balked at part of the Cavanaugh proposal. He then offered a substitute motion, part of which deleted any reference to legislative approval of the record.

He argued what the Legislature did several weeks ago in rejecting the challenge is part of the official record. He added the attorney general has been asked whether depositions taken while the committee was compiling its findings should be made public. But he noted the depositions are in the record.

Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, a member of Warner's committee, said those who gave depositions were never cross-examined and the depositions themselves have not been opened.

But Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha said he believes any materials that came to the committee could not be classified "and must be considered public information."

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh was also rebuffed when he tried to incorporate into the record a copy of the certified bond Carpenter filed with the Scotts Bluff County clerk of the district court when he made his challenge.

In addition, DeCamp wanted placed in the record a copy of legislative proceedings when a law requiring a bond to be filed in a certain manner was enacted. "Without these," DeCamp argued, "the record will be incomplete." He said both matters were brought up during floor debate earlier in the session "and are a critical part of the record."

Warner's motion also excepted the ballots from the materials which the legislative record of the race will include, and Cavanaugh did not object.

In speaking against the DeCamp motion, Warner said the Neligh senator was attempting to "make an additional record" and, in effect, wanted to re-open the record.

The reason the Legislature dropped the Carpenter challenge was that he failed to file a bond with the legislative clerk to cover costs in the event he was again found to be the loser.

Unicam Holds Approved Bill On Using Cars

Members of the Legislature had some immediate second thoughts Monday after giving final approval to a bill, LB88, under which state employees could use their own cars on the job, if that was the most "convenient" means of transportation.

Right after the vote, the lawmakers reconsidered and decided to hold the measure until another bill of a similar nature is debated.

Some of the senators were bothered by the language referring to convenience. Present law authorizes use of private cars and reimbursement if that is the most "efficient" method of transportation.

Barnett, Sullivan In Feud On Traffic Safety Funding

By The Associated Press
Lincoln Sen. Wally Barnett took Nebraska Motor Vehicles Director John Sullivan to task Monday in a feud centering on funding of the state's traffic safety program.

Barnett said Sullivan used a "back door approach" to get funding "instead of asking for them (funds) through the regular appropriations."

Barnett replied to a letter from Sullivan, in which the latter said it was "darn regrettable you chose to go for the kill in allowing 50 cents of traffic court costs to provide some level of funding support for Nebraska's highway safety program."

Barnett said the Exon administration charges the legislature is guilty of irresponsible spending, and then tried to get funding without going through regular channels.

Barnett led a fight to stop a Sullivan amendment to LB287, a measure in the Judiciary Committee last week to raise court costs in criminal cases from $6 to $8.

"I would support a program for highway safety and I always have, but I think Sullivan should ask the Appropriations Committee for the funding," Barnett said.

"The executive branch of government continues to raise hell with the legislature for being wild-eyed spenders," he said, but asks for money through amendments.

The brighter

As funeral directors, we see a lot of sadness and grief. That's one side of being in our profession.

We also see friends and relatives showing their concern and trying to help.

We see families beginning to make an adjustment.

And we do everything we can to make that adjustment easier.

These are the things that make funeral directing something fulfilling . . . and something that we take pride in.

Tax Break Urged To Older Renters

By United Press International
Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha Monday urged favorable action from the Revenue Committee on a bill to give a tax break to elderly citizens who rent rather than own the place they live.

Before the committee was LB352, which would grant a 10 % credit on rent paid by those over the age of 65. The credit would be handled the same way the food tax credit is now handled.

The credit, however, would be limited to $300 a year.

Goodrich said he felt it would only be equitable since elderly Nebraskans who own their homes get special property tax treatment under the homestead exemption law.

Not only would the credit in the Goodrich bill apply to rent, but would also apply to care costs paid by those living in senior citizen apartment complexes under an endowment arrangement.

The committee took no action on the bill, which had an estimated price tag of $2.5 million.

Also up for hearing was a bill sponsored by Sen. Gerald Koch of Ralston, LB392, to create a property tax complaint review board at the state level.

The State Tax Review Commission suggested in the bill would take the place of county boards when they sit as boards of equalization.

Specifically, it would review and act on increases or decreases requested on commercial or industrial property as well as any other property valued for tax purposes at $100,000 or more.

The committee took no action on the bill.

2nd Approval Given Teacher Protection

By The Associated Press
The legislature gave second round approval Monday to a bill that would protect school teachers and administrators from being fired for less than just cause, but efforts will be made to amend the bill before the Unicameral takes a final vote on it.

Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak said he wanted the bill, LB82, amended to remove school superintendents from the "just cause" protection.

Dworak asked for unanimous consent to have the bill bracketed (held off of final reading) but Ralston Sen. Gerald Koch objected.

Dworak said he would move to have the bill returned to select file for the amendment.

Last week, senators approved an amendment by Gothenburg Sen. Herb Duis which placed administrators, including school superintendents, under the bill's protection.

"The amendment we want would simply take superintendents out," Dworak said. He also acknowledged speculation that such an amendment would lead to another proposed change to give superintendents a hearing before they could be fired. The difference would be that school boards would not have to prove just cause for dismissal.

Several senators speculated that the Duis amendment was in fact an effort to see that the measure would be defeated. They speculated that on a final vote, inclusion of the superintendents would hurt the bill's chances of passage.

"I haven't heard those rumors, but I can tell you that was not my intention," Duis said.

Legislature Confirms Gardner Appointment

By United Press International
The Legislature Monday gave 31-3 confirmation to the appointment by Gov. J. James Exon of Roy Gardner as state personnel director.

The vote came after Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha asked that Gardner's appointment be removed from a list of other gubernatorial appointments so a separate vote could be taken on the personnel director.

Chambers said he was not attacking Gardner's integrity and was not asking his colleagues to vote against him. But he said he had received some inquiries and because of them could not vote for confirmation.

Sen. John Savage of Omaha, chairman of the Committee on Committees, which holds public hearings on certain appointments of the governor, noted there was no testimony for or against Gardner.

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings suggested the matter be laid over until Wednesday to give him and others an opportunity to find out from Chambers what the opposition might be.

"I'm inclined to support Mr. Gardner, but I want to hear the complaints," Marvel said. However, he could not get unanimous consent for a delay.

The Legislature gave 37-0 confirmation to Ken Witt and Richard C. Hanna as members of the State Board of Health; George E. Howard as a member of the Nebraska Investment Council; and Harvey Carne, an accountant in the state auditor's office.

Budget Address Early Due Date May Get Okay

By The Associated Press
The Legislature's Appropriations Committee will consider amending a bill in order to require the governor to make his budget address within 15 days after the Unicameral convenes.

The governor now has 30 legislative days to make his budget address.

Gov. J. James Exon has indicated he will not deliver his budget message until Feb. 20, the deadline, or just before then.

The amendment would be attached to LB473, a committee bill designed to change the date for submission of state agency budgets to October instead of September.

The committee advanced LB251 to the floor. The bill sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Shirley Marsh would drop the word governor from the Nebraska Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, reduce the number of members from 40 to 36, and eliminate the requirement that one member be from the governor's staff.

The committee also advanced LB474, clarifying procedures for using state-owned motor vehicles.

Hikes In Filing, Recording Fees Get Final Okay

The Legislature gave final approval Monday to a bill that would increase corporate filing and recording fees, and add an estimated $2.5 million to Nebraska's general fund.

Lincoln's Sen. Roland Luedtke's LB96 was approved on a 26-18 vote and sent to the governor.

The measure substantially increases most corporate filing fees that must be paid to the secretary of state's office.

"Of course, this bill could bring in a lot more money than the $2.5 million predicted by the corporate division of the secretary of state's office," Luedtke said. "It all depends on the amount of filings and so forth."

"Most of these fees haven't been raised in about 30 years," Luedtke said.

In addition to hikes in corporate filing fees, the measure would raise the cost of a trademark and trademark renewal from $10 to $50.

Federal Grant To Eppley OKd

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Department of Transportation has approved a $1.21 million federal grant for improvements at Omaha's Eppley Airfield.

The grant to the Omaha Airport Authority will be used to install a beacon and tower.

A portion of the federal funds will also be used to purchase and install field lighting controls for the airport's new control tower, and for improvements to two runways, officials said.

Low-Cost Homes Might Make Comeback

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Inflated prices and high mortgage rates have shattered the dreams of consumers hoping to own their own homes. Robert E. Lee, chief of the McGraw-Hill World News bureau in Houston, reports on new developments that may revive the prospect of owning your own home.)

By Robert E. Lee
Houston — Remember those low-cost GI homes of early post World War II days? Well, they might make a comeback. It's part of an attempt by the housing industry to bring construction costs low enough so that homes will once more be within reach of the average consumer.

But they won't be those crackerbox affairs of 1945-1950 vintage. If anything they'll be better constructed with new materials designed to conserve energy, be cooler and warmer. Unfortunately like the nickel loaf of bread and 10-cent quart of milk, that $8,500-$12,500 price tag for a home is gone forever. A more likely price tag, at today's inflated rates, is twice that figure.

There was a time when 60% of the families in the nation could afford to buy a home," says J. S. (Mickey) Norman Jr., recently elected president of the 77,000-member National Association of Home Builders. "In today's market, that percentage is reversed — 60% of the families can't afford to buy homes. It's up to us as an industry to turn that around again."

Norman, a Houstonian who builds everything from apartment complexes and shopping centers to single family dwellings, told "Your World Tomorrow" that the low-cost home of the late 1970's and 1980's will be smaller than current homes, with fewer amenities such as central air, central heat, carpeting and interior-finished two-car garages.

The housing industry, by its very nature, must give people what they want and they wanted all those built-ins and things of the 1960's and 1970's, but now they can't afford them.

The homes of the future — for the average person — will be on smaller lots, some of them will even have zero lot-lines, to reduce the high cost of land, car-ports probably will be in order, along with some form of solar heating. The design will take advantage of the shade for cooling, probably with broad overhangs. John Schmidt, a Los Angeles architect, says they'll include such space saving ideas as elimination of the livingroom, retention of a family room primarily for children and the addition of a sitting room for "mom" and "pop."

One Fresno, Calif., homebuilder is offering a four-bedroom garden style home for $32,000 which, at California prices, is practically a steal. While other builders across the nation have just emerged from one of their economically worst years since world war II, this builder is "selling homes as fast as I can build them."

CARMICHAEL
IT LOOKS PRETTY NICE - IF YOU DON'T THINK ABOUT IT BEING SEVERANCE PAY---

During the National Home Builders convention in Dallas recently, samples of materials of the future were on display with strong emphasis on fiberglass components. A Dallas research group demonstrating the economic feasibility and market acceptance of new products uses "Discovery 1975," a 3300-square-foot contemporary Spanish-style house, as a model for the low-cost home of the future. Here are some of the things in that home. A floor slab made of concrete that has been reinforced with glass fibers, expected to last twice as long as conventional concrete that has been reinforced with steel. Walls made of concrete block that has been stacked without horizontal or vertical mortar joints. They're expected to be stronger, and serve as both interior and exterior finish. ## Commerce Unit Approves Funds For Railroads

Washington (UPI) — The House Commerce Committee has authorized $347 million in emergency funds for the bankrupt Penn Central and Erie Lackawanna Railroads. The amount was $72 million above what Senate voted last week. Without the money, the Penn Central has said it will refuse to accept further freight shipments as of Feb. 14, and prepare to shut down at the end of the month. The Erie Lackawanna also has threatened to stop running by the end of the month.

Lincoln's Catholic Ed Board Confident

The Lincoln Catholic Board of Education has unanimously expressed confidence in the future operations of Lincoln's eight Catholic schools.

The action came after board members during the past few months have discussed the Catholic schools' goals and philosophy, staffing, curriculum and financing.

The board noted that 82% of Pius X High School graduates pursue postsecondary education, a figure "considerably above the percentage in most Nebraska schools."

One recent study of public high school graduates indicated slightly less than 50% continue in formal study.

Board members said they're encouraged too by the enrollment increase in Lincoln's Catholic schools the past two years, while public school enrollments are declining or stabilizing.

In the area of finance, the board explained that two-thirds of the Pius X income comes from the seven Lincoln parishes, and ultimately from the Sunday collection.

One budget mainstay has been the Diocesan Development Program, begun in 1971 by Bishop Glennon P. Flavin and designed to meet long-range financial needs.

Pius X tuition averages about $250 per student. Many work part-time and those unable to pay may get financial aid.

Another revenue source is the Pius X Foundation, interest from which provides seven $50 scholarships annually. The stipends are frequently given to Protestant students who attend Pius X. Interest from memorials and outright gifts is also distributed annually.

Monsignor John Flynn, pastor of St. Mary Church and a board member, said he believes students attending Lincoln Catholic elementary schools and Pius X are getting "not only a superior secular education, but also an outstanding moral and spiritual background."

While Catholic schools in Grand Island and Fremont have been closed, Monsignor Flynn said "every sacrifice will be made so that Catholic schools will continue to serve the people of Lincoln."

Catholic Board of Education members include seven lay representatives, four pastors, one teaching sister, and two ex-officio members, the Pius X superintendent and diocesan superintendent.

Morrow Committeeman Candidate

Omaha (AP) — As expected, Omaha attorney William E. Morrow Jr. Monday announced his candidacy for Nebraska Republican national committeeman.

Morrow, 44, long active in state GOP affairs, is seeking the post vacated by R. L. (Dick) Herman of Omaha.

Herman vacated the post last month, saying his business was making more demands on his time.

At the time Herman made his announcement, sources close to the state's all-Republican delegation in Washington said Morrow would likely be a candidate.

William E. Morrow

candidate for national committeeman.

May Step Down

Since that time, State GOP Chairman William Barrett of Lexington has given indication that he may step down as the state party head, and become a

Morrow, who served as manager of Rep. John Y. Mc Collister's successful campaigns in 1970 and 1972, said he thinks fund raising is one of the primary duties for the national committeeman, and that an Omahan is needed in the party's leadership because Omaha is the state's largest metropolitan area, and offers the best fund-raising opportunities.

Citing the party's financial problems since the Watergate affair, Morrow said he would work hard to help the party's fiscal situation if elected.

A native of Alliance, Morrow was graduated from the University of Nebraska College of Law in 1953.

Herman's unexpired term runs through the completion of the 1976 Republican National Convention, and a successor is expected to be named when the Republican State Central Committee meets early next month.

Cunningham Critical

Last week, the possibility of a Morrow candidacy drew fire from former Republican Congressman Glenn Cunningham of Omaha.

Cunningham said he would switch his party affiliation if Morrow is named national committeeman.

Cunningham said the law firm Morrow is affiliated with, Swarr, May, Smith & Andersen of Omaha, has represented corporate interests too long. A former member of the law firm, U.S. Circuit Court Judge Donald Ross, served as the state's national Republican committeeman before Herman assumed the duties.

"We Republicans put up with Ross for a long time," Cunningham said.

Morrow defended Ross, saying he was one of the ablest committeemen the state ever had, and added that he felt Cunningham was still bitter over his loss to McCollister in the 1970 Republican primary.

Council Approves Arts Fund Plans

A United Arts Fund proposal was approved Monday noon at the meeting of the Community Arts Council.

Larry Lusk, president of the council, said the four-part proposal was unanimously approved by the group's board of directors and has been submitted to the boards of the Nebraska Art Association, the Lincoln Symphony Association and the Lincoln Community Playhouse for further approval.

Included in the proposal were: establishment of the fund council, a letter-of-intent agreement with the Lincoln Foundation for the handling of funds, grant distribution plans, and establishment of a grant committee, consisting of art organization representatives and local businessmen.

"Initially, at least, the distribution would be made to the four larger budgeted art organizations — Lincoln Symphony Association, the Nebraska Arts Association, the Lincoln Community Playhouse and the Community Arts Council, which," Lusk said, "would help the smaller organizations."

In addition, Lusk pointed out that the Community Arts Council has submitted to the Nebraska Arts Council an application for matching funds for UAF, and it is hoped that additional funds will be provided by the National Endowment for the Arts.

UAF, which Lusk speculates will be in operation by Sept. 1, has been in the works among various art organizations in Lincoln for several years. Grants from the project would assist local art organizations with operating costs.

Members of the council also discussed plans for a three-day Lincoln Arts Fair, which is scheduled to be held in the spring of 1976, in the Lincoln Foundation Gardens.

By planning so far in advance of the actual Fair dates Lusk said, "This will give us enough time to do it and do it in a big way."

Tentative plans include the erection of tents in which art media (pottery, weaving, glass-blowing) exhibits will be held; the scheduling of outdoor concerts by the Lincoln Symphony, chamber music groups, and mime and puppet productions.

Wedding Must Go On

Bangor, Maine (AP) — Undaunted by a traffic accident that injured four members of the wedding party, two Bangor area couples were married here as scheduled.

The only change was the scene of the double wedding. It was held at the Eastern Maine Medical Center auditorium. One of the grooms and the mother of one of the brides were hospitalized.

Two cars carrying members of the wedding party crashed as the group was en route to a rehearsal Saturday — the night before the wedding.

Daniel Fish of Hampden and Delia Cote of Stetson required hospitalization. Fish married Joanne Colbath, who was injured and used a walking brace during the ceremony. Fish's brother Randall married Carolyn Cote, daughter of Mrs. Cote.

Clarence Cote, father of bride Carolyn, gave his daughter away with the help of a cane to hold him up.

The injured groom spent his wedding night in the hospital and was released the next day. Mrs. Cote is hospitalized with a back injury.

Local Grocery Prices Up 1.3% In Last Month

That Americans will have to adjust their lifestyles in accordance with the economic and energy situations and that this conformity could feasibly result in a lower standard of living is evidenced in increasing prices for the necessities of life.

As the cost of food, clothing and transportation dips deeper and deeper into the family income, less money is left for the desired luxury items and entertainment.

Many families now spend in excess of $40 or $50 each week for groceries. Whereas it was once hoped that grocery prices would decrease, or at least stabilize this year, the monthly grocery survey — conducted by staff members of The Lincoln Star — indicates that consumers will continue to spend more for food items.

1.3% In Month

The survey of 17 food items at three chain stores and one locally owned Lincoln supermarket revealed that grocery prices have increased 1.3% — or 17¢ in the last month and nearly 5¢ or 62¢ in the last six months.

This month's average total for the grocery items was $13.15, while last month's total was $12.98. Six months ago the market basket items totaled $12.53.

In the last six months only two items — ground beef and round steak — have shown a decline. Round steak decreased 21¢ from $1.72 to $1.51 per pound and ground beef underwent a 14¢ drop from 91¢ to 77¢ per pound. A look at the last 12 months shows that these two beef items sported additional decreases from February to August, 1974. Ground beef lost 6¢ per pound and round steak dropped 12¢ in the early six month period. Chicken also showed a decrease of four cents during that time, but a six-cent per pound increase this month erased that monetary gain to consumers.

Eggs this month have gained 11¢ during the last six months, but have decreased five cents per dozen in the last month. Although grade A, large eggs are currently selling for an average of 75¢ a dozen, they are still 12¢ below a high of 87¢ a dozen, the average price in February 1974.

Also, showing an 11¢ gain in the last six months is a 6 1/2 oz. can of tuna, currently being sold at an average 68¢. This is also a 15¢ increase over last February's 53¢ a can.

Pork Increases

Substantial increases were also displayed in pork products. One pound of pork chops now costs each customer $1.63, 18¢ more than the $1.45 price six months ago. Likewise, one pound of bacon has increased 13¢ from $1.54 to $1.67, in the last six months.

A 16 oz. can of peaches has increased 8¢ from 37¢ to 45¢, during the last six months, as has a one-pound box of frozen peas, which costs consumers 51¢, compared to last August's 43¢.

Other grocery items showing price increases were peanut butter, which has risen six cents in the last six months and 16¢, from 53¢ to 69¢, in the last year, ketchup, now costing 45¢ for a 14 oz. bottle, compared to 40¢ last August and 34¢ in February, 1974. Bread, showing a 10¢ increase during the past year, and spaghetti, selling for six cents more than it did one year ago.

A one-pound can of cut green beans cost 31¢ a year ago, but now commands 36¢ of the grocery budget. The price of pork and beans also has continued to climb during the past year and is costing approximately 4¢ more this month than it did last February.

Milk has shown only a nominal overall change during the last year, increasing only two cents per half gallon.

On the bright side, beet sugar has shown a decline from $2.92 to $2.24 for a five-pound bag. However, cane sugar underwent a 19¢ increase to $2.25 per five-pound bag during the last month.

Raw Sugar Said Harmful

NEW YORK (AP) — Raw sugar is unfit for use as food or as a food ingredient, warns the Sugar Assn. It is the first transformation of harvest sugar cane to a tan or brown substance that resembles sand. It is processed from the cane stalks and shipped to a refinery. And because raw sugar contains contaminants such as soil, fibers, molds, yeast, bacteria, lint and waxes, it is further processed to remove them, according to the association.

"Turbinado" sugar can be purchased at some health stores and supermarkets because it is partially refined by washing in a centrifuge under sanitary conditions. Some molasses is removed in this processing. However, contrary to popular opinion, the traces of added minerals in turbinado offer nothing in the way of nutrition.

"Raw" sugar contains extraneous material that precludes its use without further refining, warns the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in noting that it is "unfit for direct use as food or as a food ingredient because of the impurities it ordinarily contains."

Secret Grounds For Annulment

DEAR ABBY: I have been married (in name only) for five years. I was a lonely divorcee (age 47) and John was a well-to-do widower (60) when we were married.

The first night we were married I found out that he had no desire for sex whatsoever. He was impotent. I know it's not his fault, but he should have told me. (He later said he was afraid he'd lose me.)

We had everything a happily married couple could want. A lovely home, friends, trips and I can't say I wasn't living a good life, although I missed the physical side of marriage some.

Now I have met a wonderful man. He is my age (52) and it was skyrockets and Roman candles the first time we were alone together. We're in love and want to get married, but I hate to hurt John.

Would it be wrong to leave John and grab what little happiness is left in life?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: If you want to justify leaving your husband, the fact that he didn't tell you about his impotence is sufficient. (That's probably grounds for an annulment.) Trying to keep your love a secret will be like trying to smuggle down past a rooster. You'd better tell your husband before he tells you.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I can help settle the controversy, "do fish feel pain?"

They certainly do!

Sincerely,
LOUIS C. FISH,
LAKEWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 18 years to a fellow who, for the most part, is a marvelous husband, father, lover and provider. His job keeps him away from home quite a bit, so when he's in town, I enjoy having the house nice for him, cooking the meals he likes, and keeping myself up. The kids and I look forward to his coming home in the evening.

Now, the problem: If something comes up, like meeting with the boys after work, or something related to his work, he doesn't think it's necessary to call and let me know he'll not be home for dinner. He feels that phoning makes him less of a "man." Needless to say, when he doesn't phone, I become angry. When I ask him why he couldn't at least have phoned to let me know, he says he doesn't want to be henpecked.

This is getting to me, Abby. Am I asking too much? Any suggestions as to how I can handle this?

TRYING HARD

DEAR TRYING: If your husband thinks a call to say he will not be home for dinner qualifies him for the henpecked flock, he's got his birds mixed up. He's a silly goose.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20c) envelope.

Opening lead - king of hearts.
It is impossible to estimate how many points a player may lose because he does not allow for unfavorable distribution. Contracts that look easy to make are sometimes lost because declarer plunges ahead without giving weight to the danger that may lurk in the bushes.

Here is a simple case where South went down in a contract he should have made. He won the heart lead with the ace and promptly fell into the trap of trying to cash dummy's diamonds.

When he played the king and another diamond, West showed out—thus dashing South's hopes of winning six diamond tricks. Adjusting his tactics at this point, declarer won the diamond with the queen and played the K-Q-10 of clubs, hoping to score four club tricks and so make the hand.

But when he led the third club from dummy, he found he could score only three club tricks, whether he took the trick with the ten or the ace. Eventually he scored his eight high-card tricks and went down one.

Declarer's downfall can be traced to his starting on diamonds initially instead of clubs.

He should have played the K-Q of clubs at tricks two and three, and would have had no difficulty from this point on. After cashing the ten of clubs, declarer would play a diamond to the king and score the ace of clubs to obtain his ninth trick.

South could have reasoned that if the diamonds were favorably divided they were equally cashable later on, but that the same was not true about his clubs. By playing the K-Q of clubs first, he could increase his chance of gaining a vital trick if either defender held the singleton or doubleton jack of clubs.

Weather Studied Before, After

(c) Chicago Daily News

New York — How cities generate their own local weather by converting open fields and farms into buildings and roads is being demonstrated in the new community of Columbia, Md.

Scientists have been able to compare its micro-climate before 1967 when the site was a widely scattered group of 200 persons, mostly living on farms, with the present weather, now that it has grown to 25,000 inhabitants.

Columbia, designed as a model development in the corridor between Washington, D.C., and Baltimore, now has diminished winds of 15 to 40%, a factor that is important for the dispersal and dilution of pollutants. Air pollution has increased 10 to 50%, most of it due to automobiles.

The air temperature has increased because there is no longer cool soil to bring it down and there is lowered relative humidity because of the higher temperature.

"The study indicates that even a so-called planned community, with the present design systems, cannot minimize the atmospheric changes it induces," meteorologist Helmut E. Landsberg of the University of Maryland told the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science convention. "It seems that the meteorological factors should be essential elements for the planning process."

Scientists have been interested for the last decade in determining how urbanization affects the local climate. The Columbia study has given them a before-and-after opportunity to measure it.

While no change in rainfall has yet been seen in Columbia, in larger urban areas the combination of the changed heat properties of the ground surface and the diminished wind speed could set up conditions leading to rain showers and thundershowers.

Prof. Roscoe R. Braham Jr., of the University of Chicago cloud physics laboratory said.

Statistics presented by Stanley A. Changnon Jr. of the Illinois State Water Survey suggested that Chicago has as much as 17% more rainfall than areas 15 to 40 miles downwind from the city.

No Shortcut Seen To Losing Weight

By JOANNE FARRIS
Are you finding that those few extra pounds you gained over the holidays are still with you? And do you want to lose them before you start thinking about springtime?

Just by admitting to yourself that you're overweight and want to lose is the first step. Then comes the difficult business of putting yourself on a regimen that will end in the desired weight loss.

Unfortunately, there does not seem to be any shortcut. It is a matter of taking in fewer calories than your body will use each day.

Some weight can be lost by exercise, but if you try to help yourself lose this way it is still a matter of counting calories going into your body and then getting a good tally on just how many of those calories any particular form of exercise will burn up. And it's discouraging.

More and more doctors are suggesting that you keep a food diary, recording exactly what you eat and drink each day for a week. Then go to a good calorie chart and total up your caloric intake. That will give you a pretty good idea of two things.

First, it will show you more or less how many calories you can eat without gaining and by inference how many you must cut down in order to lose.

Second, it will show you what your food-eating pattern is, where and when you eat, and the kinds of snacks you eat. The more insight you have about your own eating habits the easier it is going to be for you to change them.

The most important thing of all for you to recognize and for all your well-meaning but heartless relatives and friends who bug you about your extra avoirdupois to learn is that only you can lose the weight, and you have to do it your way. The less others say about it, the better.

Assuming that you've decided to take off some pounds, here are a few "consensus" hints that may help:

Eat breakfast. Too many of us wait until we're famished and then stoke up on food. But just as you put gas in your car before you use it, you should start the day with something in your stomach.

For eating at home, there are three "rules." Don't eat standing up. That eliminates snacking. Always sit in the same room, on the same chair while you eat. That prevents TV eating or beer-sipping in the yard. And don't read or watch TV while you eat.

Concentrate on the taste of the food you're eating. In addition, it is difficult to change your eating speed, but there's no doubt about the fact that if you eat slowly you can satisfy your appetite with less food.

If you use a smaller plate the portions allowed by your diet will look larger. Smaller bites make the portion last longer. And thorough chewing takes longer and aids digestion.

If you weigh yourself every day, always do it at the same hour of the day, and don't be surprised if you lose some weight and then "plateau" for a few days or a week.

If you stick to the diet you will continue to lose. And once you've gotten your weight to where you want it, be sure to weigh regularly.

If you gain two or three pounds, take them right off, the sooner the easier.

Drinking lots of water while you're dieting helps remove water from your body. Tea, coffee, soft drinks, milk cause water retention. And liquor not only has calories, but it brings the added problem of stimulating your appetite.

So easy does it in that department. And the no-no is sweet desserts. They are full of empty calories, and they are a luxury no hungry dieter can afford.

POSTCARD

by Stan
Relaplane

San Francisco — We have no runaway children around here but we read about them in the papers. So the moppets and friends built a secret shelter — in case somebody does run away.

The youngest daughter said: "It is called Fort Rat. And nobody can know where it is."

It is named Fort Rat in honor of a pet rat who lives there. There is a cot and two blankets. The hideaway is stocked with food. Mostly jams and jellies from what I can find out.

It's a social project — "I'm going to be the counselor."

I was invited to contribute to this worthy project.

I said: "I gave at the office."

Being pushed harder I came up with a quarter. A social member of the community.

Girls in love are healthier than girls with no boy friends," says a Michigan doctor. He treats muffins at a college.

"Open your mouth and say ahhhh. Are you in love?"

Well, more chicks not in love had colds than birds who were swinging on the moon.

"Girls with boy friends have better teeth, too," said the medic.

I am a pin cushion for the medics. Smallpox. Typhoid and paratyphoid. Cholera. Yellow fever. Once they gave me plague shots.

At times I misplace the yellow card. They shoot me all over again at an airport.

I went into Tokyo without a card. A Public Health doctor "stuck me in a phone booth while I was phoning in a story. Free shot.

When Grandma was putting mustard plasters on me, there was less health around. There were no shots. No miracle pink pills.

Doctors came to the house. "Feeling a little peaked?" he said. "Here put this under your tongue."

Fortune smiles on our scatter. We have the health of burglars. We refuse to believe this and take vitamins and all kinds of gaudy pills.

One pill is pink — forget what it's for.

I took one just to see what would happen. Nothing.

Drugs did not come in easy-to-swallow pills. The doctor took a little folded white paper out of his bag. It had white powder in it.

"Here, put this on your tongue and take a drink of water," he said.

It was bitter stuff. Ugh. Grandma approved of it though. "The worse it tastes, the quicker the cure," she said.

I shook fit to die with flu a few years ago. In Galway, Ireland. It's the wild, bleak west country. You need all your health to like it. Gray stone building. The wind blowing off the Atlantic.

"To hell or to Connaght," said Cromwell when he sent the Irish here.

I was feverish. I ached all over. A friend of mine brought me Irish whisky and hot water. A lemon squeezed in it.

"It should be poteen," he said. (Poteen is the smoky bootleg.) "But the garda gets the best of it." (The police raid the stills and confiscate it.)

He said: "I was near death with the flu myself. I drank a pint of poteen and wasn't it that very night I was well and down at Monaghan's pub playing cards."

to love and be loved. You draw people to you with their problems. You gain respect — and allies. Some of your desires are revised, many will be fulfilled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) What you want to do becomes plausible and possible. One who pulls strings does some pulling in your behalf. Leo, Aquarius could be in picture. Be a self-starter where special project is concerned.
Prize will be in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Accent is on long distance communications. You are able to sense potential needs. Your intuition is on target. Follow through on what appears to be a hunch. Series of incidents are related — get in on ground floor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Usual routine does not suffice. There is work procedure change. Leo, Aquarius could be involved. You will be asked to initiate a different policy. You will receive cooperation from those who perform special services.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Spotlight is on details associated with agreements, legal or otherwise. Now is time to get views on record, to articulate ideas, to be specific about needs. Much of what you request will be fulfilled — but you must ask in direct, frank manner. You'll see!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) One who asks favors may be testing, probing.
Know it and know when to draw the line.
Another Virgo — and a Gemini — could
procedures. Get streamlining process under way. You are going to get answers to many questions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) New Moon position coincides now with new lease on special project, unique relationship, affair of heart. Luxury item, sale or be talking fast and using big numbers.

Protect yourself!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Real estate, property values and appraisals seem to be in picture. See clearly in light of facts instead of fantasy. Avoid fanning yourself. One who flatters may have ulterior motive. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You get answers to recent inquiries. You are enlightened concerning facts, figures and boundaries. Relative, very inquisitive should be dealt with in humorous way.
Older individual advocates conservative course and could be right.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Emphasis is on money and how it got that way. Finish project. Let go of losing proposition. Payments and collections may be featured. Aries, Libra are likely to be in picture. What you did in recent past will be part of present — to your credit!

glamour prevails. Element of mystery is present. Important how to be discreet.

you know. One who taught you in past is likely to make reappearance. New Moon covered. You gain access to unusual files.

A Sports Roundup

GOLF

Johnny Miller ran his winnings past the $100,000 mark with his $32,000 first place money from the Bob Hope Desert Classic. Deane Beaman, the PGA's tournament players division commissioner, is trying to negotiate with such event sponsors as Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Andy Williams about television revenues.

The celebrity events donate much of their TV package to charities, and Beaman wants them to give up at least 50 and then 80% of the package and start a general fund with distribution among all PGA tournament sponsors.

Cary Middlecoff and Julius Boros were elected to the PGA Hall of Fame, the first players to be honored for 13 years. Both are two-time winners of the U.S. Open championship.

BASEBALL

Orlando Cepeda announced he is retiring as an active player. He was released by the Kansas City Royals last year to end an 18-year major league career. Cepeda turned down a $250,000 contract to play Japanese ball this season.

The mayor of Baltimore told major league baseball that he will use every legal means to stop the sale of the Baltimore Orioles to another city. William D. Schafer said he will use the support from the state of Maryland if necessary.

Lefty pitcher Don Gullett and shortstop Dave Concepcion signed contracts with the Cincinnati Reds for the 1975 season.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have signed five more players to 1975 contracts. Pitchers Dave Giusti, Bruce Kison and rookie Odell Jones, first baseman Bob Robertson and infielder Paul Popovich all agreed to contracts.

Patrick "Packy" A. Clougherty, 86, a former Philadelphia Phillies shortstop, died Saturday in Pittsburgh.

Infielder Mike Andrews has signed a one-year contract with the Kintetsu Buffaloes of the Japanese major leagues. Andrews was dismissed from the Oakland A's during the World Series two years ago which resulted in a $2.5 million suit against Oakland owner Charlie Finley.

TENNIS

Jan Kodes advanced to the third round of the National Indoor Open Tennis Championships with a victory over Bob Kreiss.

Top-seeded Arthur Ashe of the United States. Tom Okker of the Netherlands and Bjorn Borg of Sweden all scored quarter-final victories in the Bologna WCT tournament.

TennisAmerica, Inc., the firm founded by Billie Jean King and her husband, is negotiating with a major creditor in an attempt to avoid bankruptcy. The corporation operates tennis camps and sells tennis-related products.

OTHER SPORTS

Ohio State basketball coach Fred Taylor suspended four Buckeye players for disciplinary reasons Monday before their game with Iowa, leaving only eight Ohio State players on the bench.

Joe Caldwell, suspended by the ABA's St. Louis Spirits last December will have a hearing with Commissioner Tedd Munchak. Caldwell was suspended because the team felt he was responsible for Marvin Barnes leaving the team for about a week in November.

The head basketball coach at Fort Lewis College suspended six players for "conduct contrary to rules and regulations of the basketball team."

Bob Foster, retired light-heavyweight champion of the world, will referee the Joe Frazier-Jimmy Ellis fight in Australia.

Muhammad Ali said that from now on he will fight for nothing, giving all the profits from his bouts to the black poor of the country through the major black organizations.

Richard Petty has announced that he will seek a sixth Grand National driving championship.

China returned to the top in table tennis, capturing the men's and women's world championship, both events against South Korea.

Tight end Fred Pagac has been voted the Brian Piccolo Award by his veteran teammates of the Chicago Bears. The award is symbolic of Rookie of the Year honors.

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors advanced to the third round of the U.S. Indoor Open Tennis Championships Monday with a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Czechoslovakian Jiri Granat.

Connors was slightly off form while playing only his second match since beating Rod Laver eight days ago.

Granat's "soft-ball" tactics in the second set proved troublesome for Connors.

Former Wimbledon champion Jan Kodes, the No. 2 foreign seed, surged to a 6-7, 6-4, 6-0 victory over Californian Bob Kriess to join Connors in the third round.

Alex Mayer, the No. 3 American seed, also advanced with a 6-3, 7-6 victory over Roger Dowdswell of Rhodesia.

Russian Alex Metreveli, the number three foreign seed, posted a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Mayer's younger brother Gene and also moved into the third round.

NWU Matmen To Host Duals

Peru State's nationally rated wrestlers will offer some stiff competition when they meet Nebraska Wesleyan and Midland Tuesday night at Taylor Gym, in a double dual.

The Peru Bobcats were rated seventh in the latest NAIA rankings and had a 12-2 dual record going into matches with Northwest Missouri St., Fort Hays St. and Doane this week.

They've posted two seconds, a third and a fifth in tournament action, twice finishing high

Plainsmen To Face Tough Midland Test

Nebraska Wesleyan's 9-8 Plainsmen face an important road contest 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night at Midland College if they want to finish in the upper division of the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Coach Irv Peterson's Plainsmen also face the task of bouncing back off a convincing 97-70 loss to league leading Hastings Saturday night on the NWU home court.

"I thought we'd give them a better game than that here," Peterson said of the Hastings contest. "You just can't run with a team like Hastings. They've got too much talent and bench strength."

On paper, the NWU-Midland clash appears to be the closest of any NIAC Plainsmen opponent.

Both have equal experience and height. Both average about the same number of points offensively and have faced equally against common opponents.

When Midland and Wesleyan met the first time this year, the Warriors of coach My Draemel left Lincoln with a 66-64 win after converting 12 of 12 free throws and getting 18 points from junior college transfer Greg West.

A pair of one-and-one charity tosses by Todd Mahoney iced it for the Warriors who are 12-6 overall following a Saturday night loss to Doane.

Off to one of their best starts in the 18-year coaching career of Draemel, Midland has everybody back from last year with the addition of West, who has been the recent scoring leader for the Warriors.

In conference play, Midland is positioned in third place behind Hastings and Doane with a 3-3 mark while the Plainsmen are next at 3-4.

Globetrotters Rated 'G'

How have the Harlem Globetrotters managed to maintain their popularity even though their show has changed little over the past 40 years?

I posed that question to Hallie Bryant, former Trotter and now the advance man for the basketball show which will make its annual appearance at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night in Pershing Auditorium.

"First of all, we put on a good, clean wholesome family show," Bryant said. "And you don't have to understand basketball to enjoy it because there is a lot of comedy, a lot of action—it's moving all the time."

Another factor is that the Globetrotters make their schedule so there is no overexposure in a city and they never play in one place more than once a year.

"The show is rated 'G,'" Hallie laughed, explaining that mothers and fathers enjoy it as much as the kids seeing it for the first time. "Laughter is international and people who watch the Globetrotters always go away from the gymnasium rejuvenated because they had fun."

Even though they do most of the same tricks they did years ago, it doesn't make any difference because of the surprise element. "You know they're going to do a certain thing, but you don't know when they're going to do a certain thing, but you don't know when they're going to do it," Bryant said.

All of the Globetrotters have great skill in basketball. That's a prerequisite. The team always has a good dribbler (this year it's Fred 'Curly' Neal; one showman (Meadowlark Lemon), a long-shot specialist (Bobby Joe Mason), and a dunk shot artist (Jackie Jackson and NU's own Nate Branch).

Catching Up On Sports

Our thanks to Bill Cooley, director of public information at Southeast Community College, for correcting us on a recent story about that school's game against the Nebraska Jaycees. We incorrectly called the team Nebraska Southern. Southeast Community College was formed by the merger of Nebraska Southern at Fairbury, Lincoln Technical College and Nebraska Tech at Milford.

The Academic All-American football team selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America included eight Big Eight players. Tom Goedjen of Iowa State, Tom Wolf of Oklahoma State, Rick Stearns of Colorado, and Randy Hughes, John Roush, Dewey Selmon and Leroy Selmon, all of Oklahoma.

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings, who play the Boston Celtics Wednesday night in Omaha, are the best free throw shooting team in the National Basketball Association with a .820 average through 52 games. Jimmy Walker of the Kings has become the 61st player in NBA history to score more than 10,000 points.

Kansas track coach Bob Timmons will have double duty this season. He has taken over coaching of the Jayhawks' women's track team in addition to his duties as men's cross-country and track coach.

Sophomore Jayhawk sprinter and running back in football, Laverne Smith, is academically ineligible this semester. Smith, who hopes to regain eligibility in time for next football season, set a KU single-season rushing record of 1,181 yards and was selected all-Big Eight.

A recent study on football injuries by a group at Penn State, said runs from scrimmage produce far more injuries than any other play in football. That really shouldn't be such a shocking statement when you consider that 69.2 per cent of all plays in the Big Eight last fall were runs from scrimmage.

Don Jackson, the Loyola of Los Angeles player recently slugged by Nevada-Reno coach Jim Padgett, is the same Don Jackson who got in a fight with Missouri's John Brown two years ago when he was a Nebraska Cornhusker. Both Jackson and Brown were ejected. What made it especially bad was that it was John Brown Night at Missouri.

Guard Endorses Sport Shooting

The Nebraska Army National Guard has endorsed the Nebraska High School Sport Shooting program, sponsored by the Nebraska Game Commission and Nebraska School Activities Association.

The support will include making a number of National Guard shooting ranges across the state available to students participating in the program, according to Adj. Gen. Francis L. Winner.

Russell Refuses To Follow In 'Hero' Robinson's Trail

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Russell, the "No. 1 admirer of Jackie Robinson," failed Monday to emulate his idol in accepting the honor of induction into a sports Hall of Fame.

Russell, coach of the Seattle SuperSonics of the NBA, has declined induction into Basketball's Hall of Fame. He insists upon keeping his reasoning personal, to the puzzlement of committee members who voted him into the Hall and players who battled him in Russell's 11 championship seasons with the Boston Celtics.

One recalls that Robinson was elated upon being named the first black into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

"I'm on Cloud 9," he kept saying the day of election. When Jackie died, Bill Russell was a pallbearer at the funeral of the former Brooklyn Dodgers star.

"Jackie meant a great deal to me," Russell said at the time. "He was my boyhood idol."

People like NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy and former Cincinnati Royals star Jack Twyman are puzzled as to why Russell doesn't react in the Robinson manner. Kennedy and Twyman are members of the Basketball Hall of Fame voting committee and both marked Russell's name on their ballot.

Russell would have been the first black player to secure individual enshrinement into the cage Hall. The entire New York Renaissance team, made up completely of black players, previously were elected as a group.

Russell's enshrinement now becomes doubtful. The Hall's election committee is meeting in Springfield, Mass., to discuss the unexpected development and there's a possibility he can be voted "out" of the Hall.

Lee Williams, executive chairman of the Hall of Fame, said of Russell's coolness to the honor: "I would not dare venture a guess at the reason. I've never discussed his racial or personal feelings. Anything I say would be strictly a guess and would not be appropriate at this time."

Lincolmites Win Open Car Rally

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alfeira of Lincoln won the auto rally sponsored by the Nebraska Corvette Club Sunday.

In the rally, open to all types of cars, the Alfeiras drove to victory in a Volkswagen.

Second place went to the brother-sister team of Mike and Virginia Rohla in a Mercury. Dave Ferguson and Larry Sandahl drove a Camero to a third-place finish, while Mr. and Mrs. Niles Jobst were fourth in a Cadillac. All of the winning contestants are from Lincoln.

Top Seeds Advancing

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — The top three seeds, including No. 1 Arthur Ashe of the United States, advanced into Tuesday's semifinals of the $60,000 World Championship Tennis Green Group tournament.

Ashe was joined in the final four by second-seeded Tom Okker of The Netherlands, third-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden and South Africa's Bob Hewitt.

Ashe took only 49 minutes to cut down eighth-seeded Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-2, 6-4. The lithe American played precisely and steadily, giving away little to his opponent.

Okker needed 47 minutes to dispose of sixth-seeded Bob Giltinan of Australia 6-3, 6-2. Giltinan, a newcomer to the WCT circuit, served 12 aces, but Okker won the match with sharp backhands and passing shots.

Boosalis Will Push For Tougher Campaign Law

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Councilwoman Helen Boosalis will introduce a stricter campaign reporting law to fellow lawmakers next Tuesday which would require all donations of $1 or more to be itemized.

A majority of her colleagues indicated Monday they will be willing to enact a disclosure law in time for the spring City Council and mayoral elections.

Mrs. Boosalis said she will change somewhat a proposal drafted by the City Law Department at her request.

Her bill still would require candidates to report contributions and expenditures. However, she decided not to include a section setting a limit on the amount of money a candidate could spend or a limit on the amount of money a contributor could kick into a campaign.

She said that section would "tend to favor the incumbent," since political newcomers may have to spend more money to overcome the name recognition of office-holders.

Committees Covered
The proposed ordinance not only would cover mayoral and council candidates, but political committees. Any group formed to promote or prevent passage of city charter amendments or any other measure appearing on the city ballot would have to report contributions and expenses.

Mrs. Boosalis suggested Monday that candidates receiving contributions of $50 or more would be required to itemize those donations by name and address.

But, Councilwoman Sue Bailey said she would like to see all contributions listed by name to give a "fairer picture of who is giving the money."

Councilman John Robinson said the $50 figure "is a little high" since he argued that council candidates seldom receive large donations.

As a result of that discussion Mrs. Boosalis said she will stick in a $1 amount. That means that virtually all contributions made to city office-seekers would be listed by name on the campaign report statement.

Mrs. Boosalis also said she will try to tighten up what she sees as another loophole in the state law and proposed ordinance drafted by the law department. She wants to require candidates to report all items for which funds are committed.

After Election

As it stands now, Mrs. Boosalis said many candidates can spend large sums of money on advertising which would not be reported until after the election when the bill is paid. This way, she maintained, the voters would have an inkling of the candidate's actual expenses.

Campaign reports would be filed 15, five and two days prior to the election in the city clerk's office and 20 days after the election. State law requires the filing of reports just twice before the election and once after it.

Mrs. Boosalis introduced a similar reporting bill three years ago, but the majority of the council rejected the ordinance.

Sam Schwartzkopf

Mayor's Candidacy Expected

Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf is expected to officially announce that he is a candidate for re-election at a special news conference Tuesday morning.

Schwartzkopf, who already has told reporters that he plans to run for a third term, has said he wants to make his announcement at a news conference.

One other person, Jo Doris Bragg, has announced she will seek the mayor's job.

The primary election is April 8 and the general election is May 6. Four City Council positions also are up for re-election.

Council Gives Radio Job To Shaffer

By a 4-3 vote, the City Council Monday tabbed Shaffer Communications Co. as the firm to service the city's two-way radio systems for the next four years.

The company was considered the "lowest responsible bidder" on the contract for servicing the communications systems in the police and fire departments, street division and water system.

Council members Helen Boosalis, Max Denney and John Robinson voted against the agreement because they didn't feel the city purchasing office handled the bids correctly. The three lawmakers wanted to readvertise for bids on the four-year contract.

That issue was raised last week by Fred Leutenzeiser, an unsuccessful bidder, who provided radio repair service to the city for the last 32 years. He claimed there was some irregularity in the bidding requirements and that he should be awarded the contract instead.

Charge Denied
Purchasing Agent Wayne Harvey denied that there were any irregularities in the bidding process. Harvey said Shaffer's bid would save the city $30,384 over the next four years.

Shaffer submitted a bid of $35,412 a year, while Leutenzeiser submitted a bid of $43,008 a year.

Under the City Charter, the council could either accept the lowest responsible bid, Harvey said, or reject all bids.

Mrs. Boosalis asked why the city was switching to a four-year service agreement instead of a one-year contract. Harvey said the new, more sophisticated communications equipment recently installed will require more expensive equipment to service it.

"It's not fair to say that he (Shaffer) has to spend $15,000 on one piece of equipment to repair our system for just one year," Harvey said.

He also maintained it would be easier for the city to hold one company responsible for repair work on various departmental radio systems than to keep tabs on three or four different firms.

Work For Wood
In other action, the council agreed to retain outgoing City Atty. Dick Wood to handle future legal work on the Centrum project in downtown Lincoln. Wood, who steps down from the city job Friday, will be paid a standard $40 per hour legal fee.

The Centrum is a proposed parking garage-merchandise complex in the block from N to O, 11th to 12th.

The lawmakers appointed Jerome Judd to the Street Planning Committee to fill the unexpired term of Gerald Batliner.

A public hearing was held on a proposed solicitation ordinance, at which no one testified.

The proposed law would tighten requirements for obtaining a city permit to seek funds. A permit would be required for all solicitation drives unless conducted internally among an organization's members.

The permit fee would be hiked from $1 to $10, if approved by the council next week.

In further action, the council:

City, County Nearer To Building Accord

City and county officials set the wheels in motion Monday to set up a seven-member commission to govern the County-City Building — a job which has proved nothing but headaches to the present building committee.

The City Council and County Board agreed that each group would appoint two members to the new commission. The appointees would not be elected officials, but would have some background in the field of building management, architecture, engineering or other related field.

The four people named by the council and board to the new commission would then appoint the remaining three members.

The council and board would each appoint a member to sit as a non-voting delegate on the panel to provide continuity between the existing building committee and the new group.

The present committee is composed of all three county commissioners, two council members and the mayor. The committee has been hampered in running the building since a majority of either the County Board or City Council have been able to ax proposals and budgetary items.

Under the new plan drawn up by the City-County Implementation Commission and agreed to by the city and county, the new building panel will be delegated more control over the County-City Building.

The panel will have the authority to hire a building manager, reallocate space in the crowded facility and make routine decisions on building management. The budget still would need City Council and County Board approval.

City and county lawmakers have not yet put their final stamp of approval on this arrangement; they have yet to approve an interlocal cooperation agreement setting out the commission's duties.

The lawmakers directed their respective law departments to draft that agreement. Councilwoman Sue Bailey asked that a section be included detailing the commission's responsibilities in long-range planning for the building.

Rail District To Hire One Full-Time Staffer

The Railroad Transportation Safety District (RTSD) Board got untracked Monday and agreed to hire only one full-time person to run the district.

The special meeting was called after board members became embroiled in a heated debate last week over action they had taken to seek a new director.

Board members decided they only needed one employee — not two as they had prior to Jan. 9. It was on that date that RTSD Director Mary Nuernberger took office as county engineer, leaving the top spot vacant.

RTSD coordinator John Longsdorf has said he wants the top job running the agency which is charged with eliminating railroad crossing-highway conflicts.

The board agreed to advertise for applicants in local newspapers and directed city and county staff to combine job descriptions to include both a director's and coordinator's duties.

Longsdorf has applied for the job, as have two other applicants, even though the job has not yet been officially advertised. There was disagreement last week over whether the job had been advertised.

RTSD attorney Bob Guenzel has told the board, composed of three county commissioners and three councilmen, that RTSD now needs someone who can work with the railroads to see that construction projects are completed.

Before, Guenzel said, the district needed someone who could lobby for federal dollars to finance those projects.

Councilman Max Denney asked Guenzel for a legal opinion clarifying whether or not Longsdorf would have a conflict of interest should he be named to the job. Longsdorf is on a leave of absence from Union Pacific, one of six railroads involved in RTSD relocation projects.

Denney said he wanted to settle the issue once and for all, since the possible conflict of interest issues has been raised on several occasions. Longsdorf said no conflict exists.

Jaycees Given Support For Convention Bid

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Agricultural Committee of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce voted to aid the Junior Chamber of Commerce in an attempt to attract the Jaycee Outstanding Young Farmer Program to Lincoln.

The Jaycee organization is seeking donations to cover the cost of the presentation to the national organization which they hope will bring the convention to Lincoln. Some 600 people are expected to attend.

Ed Schwartzkopf, University of Nebraska regent, told the Jaycees that they "should put together a hospitality suite featuring Nebraska beef, cheeses and bread from Nebraska wheat rather than booze."

Glenn Kreuscher, state director of agriculture, and Bill Able, an attorney with the department, discussed several bills related to agriculture.

Kreuscher warned that unless the pesticide bill now in the Agricultural Committee of the Legislature is passed, Nebraska could find itself in a position of not being able to allow any farmer to use any pesticide in 1976.

Other bills would update Bureau of Plant Industry regulations and animal disease control program regulations and put anti-freeze regulations into a national model law form.

Kreuscher and Dick Gooding, legislative representative of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, got into a heated verbal exchange over a bill that would set up a soybean checkoff to fund research and promotion activity.

"Our members have some reservations about the way the $3.2 million has been spent for the wheat program. We would like to see less political appointments on the board," said Gooding.

Gooding added that the Farm Bureau had introduced an alternative bill to the soybean bill that would set up a program for any farm group that wished to develop a checkoff program.

"What you are really worried about is how it would affect Farm Bureau," said Kreuscher. "That's not true. We wouldn't accept a dime of money. It won't affect us. You would have to admit that one organization has dominated the board (Wheat Commission). I want to see the board spread across the farm groups," Gooding said.

Gooding said that "if the bill comes out of committee in its present form the Farm Bureau will oppose it on the floor of the Legislature."

"You are putting up a position your members won't support. They favor the bill," Kreuscher said.

"You really claim to know more about our policy than our members do?" asked Gooding. "I know they support that bill," Kreuscher answered.

The two men did agree that they both supported the concept of a checkoff program to fund research and promotion activities for soybeans.

Kreuscher also accepted a Gooding proposal that the board of directors for the Soybean Commission be elected rather than appointed. "I don't really care how you get them on the commission as long as they are people who are really interested in soybeans," Kreuscher said.

Kreuscher warned Gooding, "If your organization opposes the soybean bill at least eight of the 40 organizations who are in your plant industry coalition will drop out."

The group of 40 farm organizations put together by Farm-Bureau President John Klinker has been working toward the construction of a new plant industry building on NU's East Campus in Lincoln.

Gooding and Kreuscher ended the discussion by both supporting the effort to get a new plant industry complex at the university.

Causes Investigated In 3 Lincoln Fires

Lincoln fire inspectors Monday had not yet determined the cause of fires which caused extensive damage, but in injuries, at two Lincoln homes and minor damage at a third home.

Mr. Donald King, 2235 Ryons, and her seven children fled their home after she discovered a fire in her bedroom around 6:45 a.m.

Inspector Jerry McGinn said caused smoke damage to the entire home.

McGinn said two firefighters at the scene were knocked against the wall by a backdraft — a sudden rush of air — that sounded like an explosion.

Shotgun shells were found in the bedroom McGinn said, however, that the shells would not account for the explosion when triggered by heat in an open area. He said the gunpowder in the shells would burn rapidly, but not explode.

McGinn praised Mrs. King for waking her seven children, ranging in age from five to 15, and helping them get safely out of the house before taking any other step.

"That is the right thing to do when a fire is discovered," McGinn said.

A second fire Monday caused several thousand dollars in damage to a home at 119 M rented by Ron Butz, 18, and Jeff Bill, 19.

Inspector Larry Cole said the fire was confined to a bedroom, although the rest of the house sustained heat and smoke damage. Neither Butz or Bill was home at the time of the blaze.

The fire was discovered by American Stores Credit Union employees. The credit union is adjacent to the home.

A third fire occurred Monday evening in a vacant house at 925 Groveland owned by Dale R. Phillips, 1315 Saunders.

Phillips said his wife had checked the house earlier in the day and found a water pipe had frozen and burst, causing water to leak down a furnace duct. Phillips said he checked the house Monday evening and found smoke coming from the duct.

Firemen said fire damage was confined to the furnace duct.

Student Eyes GOP Nomination

Omaha (UPI) — A 24-year-old University of Nebraska at Omaha student Monday night announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for 2nd District congressman in the 1976 primary.

Andy Liberman, Omaha, said he had a bachelor's degree in political science from UNO. He changed his party registration Monday from Democrat to Republican.

Liberman, who is single, was a Senate intern in 1969 for Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Cal.

'FOTZI' New Breed Of Animal

FOTZI, a new breed of animal, soon will be taking over the Children's Zoo.

FOTZIs (Friends of the Zoo Involved) are people — of both sexes, of all ages, of all stations of life.

It is the brainchild of Eleanor Enersen. And, if she has her way, they will be going to the zoo in "flocks . . . and herds."

The Arnett R. Folsom Zoological Society which directs all Children's Zoo activities put its stamp of approval on the new organization late last week.

"It is a working organization," said Mrs. Enersen. "But it's for fun."

As she envisions it, FOTZIs will serve the zoo in a voluntary capacity, cleaning cages and walking animals, leading tours and chaperoning activities in the Birdcage Theatre.

Prospective FOTZIs will meet at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the zoo's Birdcage Theatre to draw up blueprints for "the big roundup," Mrs. Enersen said.

NU Investigation On Bias Charge Set March 3-7

An on-site investigation into alleged sex discrimination at the University of Nebraska will take place March 3-7 according to J. L. Thomas, of the Department of Health Education and Welfare in Kansas City.

The investigation is in connection with a discrimination complaint filed by a member Ad Hoc Committee against the University of Nebraska.

The more than 90-page complaint contends that there are patterns and practices of discrimination in employment, pay, promotion and tenure of women at both the Lincoln and Omaha campuses.

The complaint lists individual cases of possible sex discrimination involving renewed contracts, unfair hiring procedures and discriminatory pay practices.

Low-Income Advocacy Agency Names Brennan As Chairman

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

A man who once said the Lincoln Action Program (LAP) had little chance of survival was elected board chairman of the low-income advocacy agency Monday night.

Mike Brennan, an alternate representing Lincoln Air Park West, defeated board members Barbara Paul and Barbara Frink of Raymond.

The election brought the board out of a month-long limbo. Other officers were elected in January but the chairmanship was left empty awaiting a report by an ad hoc committee.

The committee was asked to determine whether the board's chairman must be a bona fide board member.

The issue stemmed from the nomination of Marge Harding, outgoing chairman, to succeed herself. She was defeated in last fall's low-income election. At the same meeting, she petitioned the board to be seated as a member at large.

The ad hoc bylaws committee, aided by a field representative of Region VII, Community Services Administration, determined that neither of Mrs. Harding's requests could be granted.

In its report, the committee recommended that complete overhaul of the agency's bylaws be a high priority item for 1975, thus preventing future controversies over imprecise wording.

Brennan expressed the hope he could, "avoid the mis-statements and misunderstandings" which have resulted in conflicts between board members and Jesse Payne, LAP executive director.

Funding of LAP's programs, and some of the programs themselves, will be affected by the new Community Services Administration, created by Congress to replace the old Office of Economic Opportunity, Payne told the board.

The new bill "affects our federal/non-federal funding relationships," he said. The federal government now matches every $20 secured from local sources with $80. But beginning June 15, the percentage will shift to 70-30 and a year later to 60-40, Payne said.

Word was received Friday that Senior Opportunities and Service (SOS) will lose its funding as of March 31 unless local dollar reservoirs can be tapped.

Also affected will be Head Start, now placed totally under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

That is just the beginning of LAP's Head Start problems, although staff members say difficulties are being resolved.

Continued funding of the Head Start program has been in jeopardy since fall because of unclear definitions of responsibility between LAP and Malone Community Center.

The board directed the staff to take over the day-to-day care of Head Start and inform the Malone board of its intentions and what LAP sees as Malone's responsibilities.

It also gave Payne one week to negotiate a satisfactory lease agreement with Malone.

In other action, the board approved an amendment to the youth development program.

The amendment would drop LAP's Big Brother program, diverting the efforts to organized recreational activities.

Proposed recreation centers would serve urban and rural youngsters through strategically located centers and available transportation, according to Don Chronister-George, youth development coordinator.

Staying Ahead — Late Payment Of Taxes

Jane Bryant

By JANE BRYANT QUINN
New York — One of the best ways to get a low-interest, income tax loan has always been the U.S. Treasury. If you didn't have the money to pay your taxes, kindly old Uncle Sam would charge you only 6 1/2% on your late payments, plus a penalty of one-half of one percent of one month. Depending on how long you were delinquent, it was often cheaper to owe the government than to borrow money to pay your taxes on time.

But now the government has upped its rate. Starting July 1, the Treasury will charge late payers at an annual rate of 9%. The non-payment penalty can be waived, but it usually isn't. Depending on your alternative, it still may be cheaper to owe the government — but only if you have to do your calculating pretty closely. Most taxpayers will probably find that they're better off with a conventional lender.

Example Given
For example, if you paid your taxes five months late you'd be charged interest at an effective annual rate of 13.9% (based on a 6 1/2% rate until July 1 and 9% after that, including the one-half percent penalty). After eight months, the rate jumps to 14.4%.

Compared to this, the 5 or 6% you can get by borrowing against the cash value of an insurance policy is a lot better.

Negligence Costs
If your return is audited and the IRS agent finds it shot through with careless mistakes, he can sock you with a 5% negligence penalty — plus one-half of one percent a month for nonpayment, plus the 9% interest. With the IRS a bad check can cost another 1%.

Although they usually waive this penalty if it was an honest mistake (and come through immediately with a good check), for more serious infractions, the IRS thinks they can prove you deliberately tried to evade taxes, they'll bring you up on

One of the largest groups of farm leaders to ever attend a Nebraska Cooperative Council convention got very little good news at the group's one-day convention Monday.

Council members were told that 1975 would bring inflation that would increase the cost of what farmers buy but wouldn't increase the prices of what many farmers sell.

That statement came from three of four speakers on the afternoon program. There was more bad news from the same sources.

Dr. Ray Doll, senior vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, warned that "crop production with normal weather could be way up. Overall farm production could reach new records."

Eating Less

Doll added that the increased production was coming at a time when people were restricting their diets to buy energy in most of the nations of the world.

The only bright spot in the economy offered by Don Hovendick, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha, was predictions of better hog markets in 1975. "Profit potential for beef, dairy, poultry and crops are down," he said.

Hovendick asked and answered his own question on the availability of farm credit.

"It depends on the individual farmer. Some won't be back farming next year. Some can get credit and some won't be able to get what they need," he said.

"We expect 1975 to be a rough year with improvement coming in 1976 or later. Our objectives will be to help our good producers to hang on," he said.

Dr. Mike Turner, an agricultural economist at the University of Nebraska, noted that "the carryover of farm products is quite low."

In 18 Months

Turner said "you can get real dry in the mouth talking to cattle feeders these days. All I can offer them is the hope that we might be able to eat our way out of the beef problem in 18 months."

Turner predicted cattle prices might reach $44 to $48 per hundredweight this next year. "If grain prices come down some it might be a little better," he said.

Turner's prediction for hog prices ranged from $44 to $48 per hundred weight over the next 12 months.

Turner pointed out that prediction of grain prices was greatly affected by any kind of change in supply, weather or in government action.

"Corn prices could be anywhere from $2 to $4 a bushel but since I have to predict something I will say they are most likely going to be between $2 and $2.50."

Clayton Yeutter, assistant secretary of agriculture, told the convention that

"Cooperatives ought to get into the grain export market. I understand that you don't have the capital it takes but if that is the problem we better find a way to get the capital."

"A handful of big companies control the export market. They buy their grain mostly from cooperatives. Farmers have got to learn to do a better job of marketing, including getting into the export market," Yeutter said.

Grain Price Drops

Yeutter attacked the concept of a grain reserve. "Every time some farm organization testifies in favor of a grain reserve the price of grain goes down by a bushel," he said.

"There are more consumers than farmers. If they manage to get a grain reserve built up you can bet they will decide to control when that reserve will be sold. Farmers will never be able to set grain prices as long as a reserve exists," he warned.

Asked about the possibility that farmers would fund programs designed to export their products only to have an export ban slapped on their products, Yeutter said:

"All I can say is yes, you might get an export ban, but I do feel that of all the farm product exporting nations we are the most committed to a free trade policy. I can only suggest that you fight export controls with all the strength you can muster," he said.

Feeders To Stay Involved In ABP

Omaha (UPI) — The National Livestock Feeders Association plans to stay intensely involved in American Beef Packers Inc. bankruptcy proceedings, but won't get into a "gutter fight" with present ABP management.

Bill Jones, NLFA executive vice president, said Monday the association rank and file, for the first time has officially authorized the NLFA staff to "be active" in the bankruptcy proceedings.

The action came, Jones told UPI, during the NLFA annual convention in Dallas, Tex.

"The determination was made," Jones said, "that the association would continue to be active with respect to the proceedings and particularly with regard to communicating with feeders and keeping them abreast of developments."

Feeders are holding an estimated $25 million in rubber American Beef checks, most of which bounced after the firm filed limited bankruptcy in Omaha Jan. 7.

Prior to the convention action, the NLFA had formed an unofficial creditors committee to act in behalf of the feeders holding the ABP checks.

A stockholder group composed of the original organizers of Beefland International of Council Bluffs, a wholly owned ABP subsidiary, has sought out the feeders for support in an attempt to take over American Beef.

"The association isn't going to engage in any gutter fighting with respect to present management," Jones said. "Our interest is getting the firm back in an ongoing position in the market place. But this doesn't necessarily mean with present ABP management."

In addition, Jones said the feeder position doesn't mean "anything one way or the other" in regard to ABP board chairman and president Frank R. West.

Among the 34 resolutions adopted by the feeder group at its annual convention was assured payment for slaughter livestock.

In the resolution the NLFA vowed to "vigorously" renew its efforts "to bring about changes in procedures in order to establish a practical payment assurance system which will protect livestock feeders."

The association also came out against deferred delivery of livestock and called for "strict enforcement" of the new amendments to the commodity exchange act governing futures trading.

Donald H. Hunter, Centerville, S.D., was elected NLFA president succeeding Milton J. Brown, Mt. Pleasant, Mich., who held the top post for two years.

Tom Monier, Walnut, Ill., was elected first vice president, while Richard Hyde, Hastings, Iowa, and Mel Kuska, Fairmont, Neb., were re-elected vice presidents.

Lauren Carlson of Chokio, Minn., was elected to the third office of vice president.

The group will hold its 1976 convention in Omaha.

Fort Morgan Slaughtering Plant Closed

Fort Morgan, Colo. (AP) — The Fort Morgan plant of American Beef Corp. closed Monday with the expiration of a custom killing contract.

Brent DeBell, plant manager, said the company does not know when the plant will be re-opened.

American Beef, of Omaha, Neb., filed for protection of the federal court in Omaha on Jan. 7 under the Chapter 11 bankruptcy law. The law allows a company to continue operating while attempting to work out a plan for paying its debts.

The Fort Morgan American Beef plant, which employs 400 persons, closed Jan. 7 and then reopened Jan. 22 to slaughter 15,000 head of cattle for Ladd Hitch, a Guymon, Okla., cattle feeder.

DeBell said about 500 management, security and custodial employees will remain on the job. The Fort Morgan plant was reopened for custom slaughtering only Jan. 22.

Only the slaughtering operation reopened. The butchering area has remained closed since Jan. 7.

Fumaryl Death Probed

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — Council Bluffs police continued their investigation Monday into the death of Charles Fumaryl of Omaha, the security head for Beefland International, Inc.

Fumaryl, 53, was found Sunday morning, slumped over his office desk, the apparent victim of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, according to Pottawattamie County Medical Examiner Dr. Samuel Rosa. He died a short time later in a local hospital.

Police said a .38-caliber pistol was found near Fumaryl's body.

Fumaryl was the only person in the building at the time of the shooting, investigators said.

Beefland International is a wholly-owned subsidiary of financially troubled American Beef Packers, Inc.

Mid-State Needed—Dirmeyer

Grand Island (AP) — "There will be more chance for a wet Platte River with Mid-State than without the project," a Central Nebraska Public Power District (CNPPD) official said here Monday.

Speaking during the regular monthly meeting of the Mid-State Reclamation District Board of Directors, CNPPD general manager Richard Dirmeyer, Holdrege, commented on the possibility that Nebraska will get minimum stream-flow laws in the near future through either federal or state legislation.

"I hope whatever flows are set are something we can live with," Dirmeyer said. "It would be disastrous for irrigation to require unrealistic flows on the Platte River during the summer."

The CNPPD official attributed

ed the stabilized economy and rising water table in some areas near Holdrege to the TriCounty Irrigation Project. He added that the Platte is stabilized by return flows from the irrigation project, and Mid-State would further enhance the river by producing storage for water during high-flow periods and the subsequent return of irrigation waters.

"Mid-State is definitely needed to keep the underground water recharges alive," Dirmeyer said.

Although he lacked positive proof through research, Dirmeyer said he believes the buildup of tree stands along the Platte over the past 75 years is responsible for a good deal of water uptake. He estimated that the trees along the stream from Kingsley Dam to Duncan might use 1,000,000 acre feet of water

Plymouth Pallet Producer Prospers

By DEAN TERRILL

Plymouth — Everybody knows that the Nebraska prairie is no place to make a living from wood. Well, just about everybody.

Wasserman Wood Products not only provides a livelihood for its energetic young owner, Leonard Wasserman, but for 21 employees. That adds up to the largest payroll in this Jefferson County community — and to one of southeast Nebraska's more unusual operations.

Nearly tripling its space this summer with occupancy of a new 8,800-square foot plant, the firm does all its business through other industries. It supplies pallets—rough-board shipping crates made to be handled by fork lifts—for 37 companies.

Among the largest customers are Nashua, a paper concern in Omaha, Allen Products Co. of Crete, Outboard Marine of Lincoln, and Georgia-Pacific of Blue Rapids, Kan. Most outlets are within 200 miles, though the firm has delivered as far away as Scottsbluff.

"These days every manufacturer is trying to reduce man-hours, so industries are turning more and more to pallets which permit quantity handling," said Wasserman, 32, and a native of nearby Odell. "Our first six months of 1974, things really started booming. At one time we were behind as many as 15,700 pallets."

Approximately half the firm's raw material is native cottonwood cut by independent sawmills at Table Rock, Central City, Peru, Belgrade, Wilber and Corns, Mo. The balance is low-grade fir, yellow pine and hemlock shipped by rail from western states.

Even with the good supply of cottonwood in this area, incidentally, Wasserman said this lumber runs three cents per board foot higher than the western material.

In the wood business since 1962, Wasserman had been in a partnership which operated a sawmill west of Clatonia. He converted to the pallet operation on his own in 1967, moving into a new 3,600-square-foot building erected by Plymouth industrial boosters.

He started with five employees, took only a few years to pay off a loan to the industrial group and then concentrated on expansion.

"Besides being a friendly and attractive town in which to locate, this is a concerned community," said Wasserman. "Plymouth has been real good to us."

Hruska Pokes Fairness Doctrine

Omaha (AP) — Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., says he will introduce a bill to end the equal time and fairness doctrines applied to broadcast stations.

The measure, Hruska said in a news release, also would end the ban on cigarette advertising on broadcast stations, permit non-commercial stations to editorialize and force the Postal Service and the military to pay for broadcast advertisements which now are carried without charge.

Hruska said his measure is designed to "end discrimination against broadcasters and guarantee First Amendment rights for the radio and television press."

Hruska, the ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he is "disturbed" by federal laws and Federal Communications Commission (FCC) regulations that he considers unfair to the electronic media.

He said his bill would repeal Section 315 of the Communications Act of 1934 which includes the equal time provision for political broadcasts and forces broadcasters to charge political candidates the lowest advertising rate.

Hruska said, "The bill would eliminate many provisions of the so-called Fairness Doctrine. Broadcasters should not be saddled with a legal duty to provide air time for contrasting views on controversial public issues."

Hruska said newspapers aren't required to provide balance, or to present differing opinions or to give space to political candidates they oppose editorially or even attack in print.

Hruska said, "These should be ethical, not legal, considerations for each member of the press. To mandate ethics by force of law is a breach of First Amendment rights."

Hruska said the U.S. military

McCollister Backs Ford Oil Fee

Omaha (UPI) — American dependence on foreign oil is killing the nation's economy, Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., said Monday.

The Second District lawmaker said Congress must end President Ford's program to increase the cost of foreign oil through a $3-per-barrel import oil cartel.

Imported oil just three years ago was costing roughly $2 billion annually, he said, but now is costing $25 to $30 billion a year.

McCollister said the import license fee, rather than rationing, is the answer to breaking up the Middle Eastern oil cartel.

He suggested, at a news conference here, that the automotive industry convert to production of vehicles using less fuel and that mass transportation developed and the Alaskan Pipeline be constructed.

McCollister said rationing of gasoline would mean 140 million licensed drivers in the nation competing for the weekly supply of 25 million gallons. The import fee, he said, would be restored to U.S. consumers in the form of tax rebates on personal income taxes and deductions.

He suggested a 10-year period of energy austerity during which coal and shale oil resources be developed and the Alaskan Pipeline be constructed.

McCollister, in response to other questions, said he expects the Democratic congressional leadership to try to increase congressmen's pay by voting a $25 to $35 per day living allowance while Congress is in session.

He said he had not decided how he would vote on Ford's request for $522 million in supplemental aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Curtis said he does not believe the United States has been given sufficient indication that all reasonable actions have been taken to account for the missing in action.

In introducing the bill, Thurmond noted that "the Defense Department probably will not recommend approval of this measure."

Deputies Chauffeur Busload Of Students

Papillion (AP)—Several Sarpy County deputies ended up chauffeuring a busload of students to classes Monday after a school bus overturned on an icy rural road about 1 1/2 miles south of here.

Officials said there were 25 students on the bus at the time of the incident, but that no serious injuries were reported.

One girl, Lisa Ross, 6, of rural Papillion, was taken to a hospital where she was treated for a bruised knee, then released.

The driver of the bus, which was loaded with students bound for Springfield Elementary School and Platteview High School, was identified as Dolly Crandall.

Mrs. Crandall, who has been driving a school bus for six years, told authorities that she lost control when the bus hit a patch of ice as it went through a small snow drift. The bus slid in the road, and landed on its side in a ditch.

Child 4th Generation In One-Room School

Hershey (UPI) — The Class of 1987 entered the rural Birdwood School last week. The enrollment rose 60% — from five to eight pupils.

But the occasion meant a little more for the Buck Green family. It was 5-year-old Stephanie Green's first day at kindergarten.

And she's the fourth generation of the Green family to attend the school district's one-room facilities.

Her great-grandmother, Mrs. Star Green, her grandfather, George Green, and her father, Buck, were all on hand to commemorate the occasion.

Mrs. Star Green said her father homesteaded several miles northwest of Hershey in 1881, and her mother moved into the area two or three years later.

Before the present building was established, Mrs. Green said the school facilities were moved from time to time around the district.

"In those days," she said, "you sort of took the school to the kids."

The school is surrounded by Green family ranchland now, and Mrs. Green recalled she and her husband, with the help of school children, planted trees on the site years ago to stop the wind and to help keep the sand from blowing away.

The teachers, she said, boarded with ranch families and students could continue in school as long as they desired.

Nowadays when the pupils of Mrs. Gene Taylor of Sutherland, the school's only teacher, finish the eighth grade, they usually enroll in the Hershey High School.

Sidney (UPI) — A $5,000 emergency allocation has been approved by the Cheyenne County Board to finance the county's district court operations for the last five months of the fiscal year. So far, the officials said, more than $6,780 has been spent.
